

HAL
open science

Work in Progress. L'organisation militaire de la Confédération béotienne du Ve au IIe siècle av. J.-C.

Thierry Lucas

► To cite this version:

Thierry Lucas. Work in Progress. L'organisation militaire de la Confédération béotienne du Ve au IIe siècle av. J.-C.. 2016, pp.9. hal-03212960

HAL Id: hal-03212960

<https://hal.science/hal-03212960>

Submitted on 11 May 2021

HAL is a multi-disciplinary open access archive for the deposit and dissemination of scientific research documents, whether they are published or not. The documents may come from teaching and research institutions in France or abroad, or from public or private research centers.

L'archive ouverte pluridisciplinaire HAL, est destinée au dépôt et à la diffusion de documents scientifiques de niveau recherche, publiés ou non, émanant des établissements d'enseignement et de recherche français ou étrangers, des laboratoires publics ou privés.

T E I R E S I A S

A Review and Bibliography of Boiotian Studies

ISSN 1206-5730

Thierry Lucas

“L’organisation militaire de la Confédération béotienne du Ve au IIe siècle av. J.-C.”

Teiresias 46.1 (2016), 9.

---

Teiresias is distributed by Electronic Mail and is available on request from fabienne.marchand[at]unifr.ch
Teiresias is also available from its website: <http://www.teiresias-journal.org>

---

DÉPÔT LÉGAL 2ème trimestre 2016/LEGAL DEPOSIT 2nd quarter 2016
Bibliothèque nationale du Québec
Bibliothèque nationale du Canada/National Library of Canada

461.0.06 Thierry Lucas (Université Paris 1) L'organisation militaire de la Confédération béotienne du V<sup>e</sup> au II<sup>e</sup> siècle av. J.-C. (supervisors: Profs. Francis Prost and Christel Müller)

My PhD thesis, which has started this year, is focused on the military organization of the Boeotian League between the 5th and the 2nd centuries B.C. As this research has just begun, only an outline is offered here. Its aim is to explore all aspects of the Boeotian military, including its social, political and spatial dimensions. For this purpose, a long-term approach is necessary, covering all three main moments of the Boeotian koinon: the Classical League, the period of the Theban hegemony, and the Hellenistic koinon. For the first period, the evidence is mainly historical, with the crucial record of the Hellenica Oxyrhynchia, as well as Thucydides and Xenophon. For the Theban hegemony, our evidence is patchier. The main issues revolve around the central figure of Epameinondas and the legend that surrounded him. Although historical records for the Hellenistic period are scarce, research will benefit from extensive epigraphic data from different Boeotian cities, which will provide direct evidence of the military organization of the koinon. D. Knoepfler's research on the institutions of the Hellenistic koinon has demonstrated that each of the seven territorial districts provided a boiotarch. Nevertheless the full extent of the military organization of the Hellenistic League is yet to be fully explored, and I intend to carry out this research in a substantial chapter of my PhD thesis. When needed, the Archaic League and the religious koinon of Roman times will be taken into consideration, but they will not be central to the research, which will remain focused on the Classical and Hellenistic periods.

All sources available will be used to complete this study: historical records of course, but also epigraphic evidence. A spatial approach that could account for the different scales implied in the analysis, the koinon, the sub-regions or federal districts, and the various poleis of Boeotia, will also be offered. Thanks to these various types of documents, the deep connections of the military with various topics such as demography, religion, society and politics of the koinon will be fully investigated. Another substantial chapter will deal with archaeological data and the military architecture of Boeotia, following important works by J. Fossey on the defensive network of Boeotia. There will also be discussed a recent hypothesis arguing that some places traditionally attributed to Athens (Eleutherai and Aigosthena) could be in fact understood as Boeotian fortifications from Epameinondas' time. More generally, the idea of a Boeotian fortification "style" needs to be investigated and questioned, and, in order to avoid the interpretations based on superficial comparisons that have prevailed to this date, technical analysis based on a clearly defined method will need to be applied.

This interdisciplinary approach should allow an insight into the importance of the military domain in the organization of the koinon and of the poleis of Boeotia, and in their political strategies and social life, even in times of peace.

461.0.07 Anne-Charlotte Panissié (Université Paris Ouest Nanterre La Défense) A contribution to the Religious Institutions of Boeotia from the Archaic to the Roman period (supervisor: Prof. Christel Müller, UMR 7041 – ArScAn, Université).

It has become a truism to say that Boeotia is long known for its political model: the koina (or Boeotian Confederacies) that extended from the 6th century B.C. down to the Roman period, which were the one of the first and most complete examples of a federal state in the Ancient Greek World. If Boeotia is still at the core of political studies as we can see with the recent publications on federalism<sup>1</sup> and ethnicity<sup>2</sup> that have brought a renewal on that topic in the last

---

<sup>1</sup> Among the most recently published works, see: MACKIL, Emily Maureen, Creating a common polity: religion, economy, and politics in the making of the Greek koinon, Berkeley, 2013; FUNKE Peter and HAAKE Matthias (éds.), Greek federal states and their sanctuaries: identity and integration, Stuttgart, 2013; BECK, Hans, and FUNKE, Peter eds. Federalism in Greek antiquity, Cambridge, 2015. And on the Boeotian districts: KNOEPFLER,