

HAL
open science

From Dacia Minor to Nicomedia: Iconography, Onomastics and a New Career of the Late Roman Army.
The Sarcophagus of Tziampo, protector divini lateris
Hüseyin Sami Öztürk, Dan Dana

► To cite this version:

Hüseyin Sami Öztürk, Dan Dana. From Dacia Minor to Nicomedia: Iconography, Onomastics and a New Career of the Late Roman Army. The Sarcophagus of Tziampo, protector divini lateris. Acta Classica Mediterranea, 2021, 4, pp.29-65. hal-03503345

HAL Id: hal-03503345

<https://hal.science/hal-03503345v1>

Submitted on 27 Dec 2021

HAL is a multi-disciplinary open access archive for the deposit and dissemination of scientific research documents, whether they are published or not. The documents may come from teaching and research institutions in France or abroad, or from public or private research centers.

L'archive ouverte pluridisciplinaire HAL, est destinée au dépôt et à la diffusion de documents scientifiques de niveau recherche, publiés ou non, émanant des établissements d'enseignement et de recherche français ou étrangers, des laboratoires publics ou privés.

From Dacia Minor to Nicomedia: Iconography, Onomastics and a New Career of the Late Roman Army. The Sarcophagus of Tziampo, protector divini lateris

Hüseyin Sami Öztürk - Dan Dana

Özet

İzmit Su ve Kanalizasyon İdaresi Genel Müdürlüğü'nün bulunduğu alanda Kocaeli Arkeoloji ve Etnografya Müzesi Müdürlüğü tarafından 2017-2019 yılları arasında bir kurtarma kazısı yapıldı. Bu kazılar sırasında, içerisinde 5 in situ lahit, 51 kiremit mezar ve iki amphora mezarı bulunan yeni bir nekropol alanı keşfedilmiştir. Lahitlerden dördü üzerinde ise Roma dönemine tarihlenen mezar yazıtları tespit edilmiştir. Bu makalede, bu yazıtlardan Latince olanı tanıtılmaktadır. Diocletianus ya da Constantinus zamanına tarihlenen yazıtın çevirisi şöyledir: “Yeraltı Tanrıları’na! Dacia Minor Eyaleti’ndeki Pieucens Bölgesi kökenli, İmparator koruyucusu (= protector divini lateris) Tziampo bu mezar anıtını yeniden yaptırdı. (Ben) 50 yıl yaşadı(m). Bu mezara oğlum Severus yahut da eşim dışında (başka hiç kimsenin) gömülmesine izin vermiyorum. 9 yıl süvari, 11 yıl ordinarius ve 10 yıl protector olarak askerlik yaptım. Şayet birisi bu mezara bir başkasını gömmeye cesaret ederse, fiscus’a 20; kent kasasına 10 folles ödeyecektir. Tüm askerliğim 30 yıl sürdü. Hoşçakalın!”

Anahtar sözcükler: Nikomedeia, Bithynia, Dacia Minor, mezar yazıtı, onomastik, Diocletianus/Constantinus, Geç Roma ordusu, protector divini lateris, caballarius, ordinarius

Abstract

A rescue excavation by the Directorate of the Kocaeli Museum of Archaeology and Ethnography was conducted between 2017 and 2019 in the area where the General Directorate of Izmit Water and Sewerage Administration is located. In the course of these excavations, a new necropolis area was discovered, including five in situ sarcophagi, 51 tile tombs, and two amphora tombs. Among them, four sarcophagi bear funerary inscriptions dating from the Roman period. This Assoc. Prof., Marmara University, Faculty of Arts and Sciences, Department of History, İstanbul (hsoztrk@yahoo.com; <https://orcid.org/0000-0002-4366-1277>).

Dr., CNRS/HISOMA (Histoire et Sources des Mondes Antiques, UMR 5189), Lyon (dan.dana@mom.fr; <https://orcid.org/0000-0001-9462-7266>).

We would like to thank the former director of the Museum, Mr Rıdvan GÖLCÜK (now at Troia Museum) and archaeologist Kemal ÇİBÜK (now at Troia Museum), who informed us about the inscriptions and allowed us to study them. We are also grateful to the director of the Museum, Mr Serkan GEDÜK, archaeologist Zuhale UYKAL and other museum staff who helped us during these works also to İstanbul Archaeological Museums for allowing the publication of the photo (Fig. 8) and Tuğçe AKBAYTOĞAN (the vice director of IAM), Feza DEMİRKÖK (the epigraphist of IAM) and Dilara TURAN (IAM).

paper presents one of these. The translation of this Latin inscription dated to Diocletian or Constantine is following as: “To the spirits of the dead! I, Tziampo, protector of the divine flank, restored my monument, originating from regio Pieucensis, province of Dacia Minor. He lived 50 years. And I want that nobody will be permitted to be deposited here except his son Severus or his wife. He served as horseman for nine years, as ordinarius for 11 years, and protected as protector for 10 years. But if another (person) dares to open (the sarcophagus), let him give the fiscus 20 folles and the city 10 folles. On the whole, he served for 30 years. Farewell, passers-by!

Keywords: Nicomedia, Bithynia, Dacia Minor, epitaph, onomastics, Diocletian/Constantine, Late Roman army, protector divini lateris, caballarius, ordinarius

I. The sarcophagus and its archaeological context

During the foundation construction for a building in April 2017 in Serdar neighbourhood of the district of İzmit (Kocaeli), at the southern border of D-100 Motorway, at No. 59 Sekapark, in the area where the General Directorate of İzmit Water and Sewerage Administration (İSU) is located, archaeological remains were discovered. A rescue excavation was conducted subsequently in the area by the Directory of Kocaeli Museum of Archaeology and Ethnography. Among the finds unearthed during these excavations (2017-2019), we can note five in situ sarcophagi¹ (one of which is without inscription) surrounded by a necropolis wall, 51 tile tombs and two amphora tombs, 99 coins, 12 terracotta artefacts, eight glass artefacts, two metal artefacts, two stone artefacts and one bronze idol².

The newly discovered necropolis area is located about 700 m from the city gate, on a terraced area 6-8 m above sea level³. The necropolis shows characteristics of stonework particular to Late Roman-Early Byzantine style; its wall is about 11 meters long and 60-80 cm wide in the eastern direction⁴. The existence of this Its existence was already known when another sarcophagus was discovered close to the excavation area in 1972⁵. The inscriptions of all four sarcophagi are located within the wall facing southwards, indicating that the road entering the city passed to the south of the necropolis.

Inscriptions and the recovered archaeological materials show that the necropolis was intensively used between the 2nd-4th centuries.⁶ The coins recovered in the necropolis area are highly relevant in our dating. According to the 23 coins that could be dated out of a total of 99, the earliest date for the use of the necropolis is the reign of Severus Alexander, while Constantius II's reign seems to be the latest⁷.

The existence of an extant in situ necropolis is a great chance; the entire area was probably covered and protected via a large scale landslide. Only one reason appears for such a large necropolis to be buried underground: a major earthquake. Indeed,

- 1 The edition of two of the four inscribed sarcophagi was published ("Two New Inscriptions from the Western Necropolis of Nikomedeia", Libri: The Journal of Epigraphy, Translation and Review 7 [2021]) 203-211). The fourth inscription, a Greek epigram, will be prepared for publication by M. Dana (Lyon 3 University). For a recent discovery of inscribed sarcophagi, this time in a necropolis of Nicaea, see EKİN-MERİÇ – DREYER 2021, 47-63.
- 2 UYKAL et alii 2019, 139-156; ÇOBAN – AVŞAR 2019, 171-186; GÖLCÜK et alii 2020.
- 3 GÖLCÜK et alii 2020, 120.
- 4 GÖLCÜK et alii 2020, 121.
- 5 TAM IV.1 239. See also: GÖLCÜK et alii 2020, 121.
- 6 GÖLCÜK et alii 2020, 120.
- 7 UYKAL et alii 2019, 150-154; GÖLCÜK et alii 2020, 125.

the latest coins discovered in the necropolis are those minted during the reign of Constantius II and are crucial for our dating. Three devastating earthquakes centered on Nicaea and then Nicomedia took place during his reign. It is possible that during or in the aftermath of one of these earthquakes, the necropolis was wholly buried.

These inscribed sarcophagi and other findings, which survived to our times by chance, allowed us to learn new information about the city and the Eastern Mediterranean world. The inscribed sarcophagus of a protector dated to Diocletian's or Constantine's reign published in detail in this article was briefly presented twice, with Turkish translation (but without the Latin text) and some photos⁸.

This marble sarcophagus is composed of a coffin (H: 116 cm; W: 224 cm; D: 116 cm) and its lid (H: 85.5 cm; W: 236 cm; D: 124 cm), both of good execution, and moreover with two decorated acroteria (see below). Two skeletons with their heads facing west were discovered in the sarcophagus. There was a broken bottle on the skeletons; in addition, a golden band and wooden pieces were found in the coffin. Unfortunately, there is no information about the analysis of the skeletons.

II. The iconography

This partially decorated sarcophagus⁹ is remarkable because of the two corner acroteria on one side of the lid, presenting each one a personage in relief. In both cases, the chosen iconography is highly significant:

(a) on the left corner, in a carved niche, a hunting scene - a rider in tunic and large mantle on a galloping horse, killing a wild beast (a boar?) with a spear -, displaying, in fact, the motif of the so-called "Thracian Rider", superposed to the idealized mounted image of the deceased. While this scene is omnipresent in the Thracian lands of the Balkans during the imperial period, we may insist on some later usages in a military context. In the same Tetrarchic period as that of our sarcophagus, avatars of the hunting "Thracian Rider" occur funerary stelae of soldiers that died in Asia Minor at Bithynion/Claudiopolis (two soldiers, one of the deceased being ex regione Scadiesiana, so from the Balkans; see below, § VII.2) and Thyatira (Val. Iuventinus, exarchus from a Balkanic vexillatio)¹⁰, and in northern Italy at Augusta Taurinorum, in the latter on the stele of Aur. Marcianus, circitor from an unknown unit (since the epitaph is fragmentary)¹¹. We recall also invoke

8 ÖZTÜRK – DEMİRHAN-ÖZTÜRK 2019, 37, No. 4 (only Turkish transl.); GÖLCÜK et alii 2020, 124, No. 5 (only Turkish transl.), photos Pl. 35.2 (inscribed face of the sarcophagus), 36.1-2 (inner part of the sarcophagus, with two skeletons), 43.1-2 (iconography).

9 On Roman sarcophagi, see RUSSELL 2011.

10 CIL III 405 = ILS 2792 = TAM V.2 1122: D(is) M(anibus). Val(erius) Iuventinus, exarc(h)us, | qui militavit annos XX in vexilla|tion(e) eqq(uitum) Dal(matarum) comit(atensium) Ancial|itana, vixit annos XL. Collect|a<r>ii titulum conscriptum ex | bonis eius posuerunt | bene merenti. Vale | viator. Cf. the unique description (in 1750) of PEYSSONNEL 1765, 285: "un Marbre sépulchral, représentant un Homme à Cheval, accompagné de deux Chiens, & prêt à percer un Sanglier avec sa lance", reproduced in CIL and TAM ("equus cum canibus duobus aprum hasta percussurus/insultans"), and in PM, II, 334, No. 1400.

11 CIL V 6999; FRANZONI 1987, 97-98, No. 69 (Pl. XXXVI.1); the image, similar to that from the two stelae from Bithynion/Claudiopolis, is very slightly engraved, like a sgraffito. The upper part of a stela of a horseman, found at Romuliana/Gamzigrad, depicts the deceased under the traits of the "Thracian Rider" (with a pilleus Pannonicus), followed by a soldier holding a lance and a shield (Lupa 5471).

the stele of Valerius Victorinus (Ulmetum, Scythia), who served as biarchus among the scutarii in the imperial guard: the field in the middle of the sculpted panel depicts a horseman brandishing a spear, thus the dead is only partially portrayed as the “Thracian Rider”¹². On the sarcophagus, we may remark the symmetry of the scene (extremity of the horse - wild animal), clearly highlighted by the spear in diagonal.

(b) on the right corner, in a carved niche, the deceased is shown as a standing soldier (his face is now damaged); he wears in a belted, long-sleeved tunic (tunica manicata) with a typically 4th cent. kammhelm (ridge helmet and crest with plumes)¹³, a long spatha-sword with a square end that is partially visible, holding a hasta in the right hand, while the left hand rests on an oval scutum, with a central domed umbo. We observe a symmetry again, with the soldier in the middle of the scene; the bottom of the spear-head goes beyond the edge of the niche. While the scene depicts the well-known type of “stehender Soldat”¹⁴, we may note similar representations for soldiers of the late Roman army: the funerary plaque of a Dardanian protector in Aquileia (however, the shield displays the emblem of the Moesiaci, his former legion)¹⁵, and epitaphs of Balkan legionaries from the same city, figuring soldiers with two lances in the right hand and the left-hand resting on a shield: Aurelius Sudicentzus¹⁶, Val. Quintus¹⁷ and an anonymous one¹⁸; Lepontius’ stele from Strasbourg¹⁹; and the famous diptych from Monza figuring Stilicho. Even more interesting is the iconography of the stele of Fl. Ingenuus, centenarius ex num(ero) eq(uitum) cataf(ractariorum) sen(iorum), found at Lugdunum²⁰: the horseman, with a long lance in diagonal and a helmet with plumes, is preceded by a military servant holding a sword (?) and lending the horse by the bridle, and succeeded by another military servant with a lance and a shield.

III. The inscription

The epitaph is placed on one side of the sarcophagus, below the two motifs, the epigraphic field measuring 46 x 220 cm. Letters were carved in deep relief, with apices, some of them elegant; height of the letters measures: 9.5 cm (lid, L. 1) and 4.2 cm (sarcophagus); all line space: ca. 1.5 cm. The only damaged point occurs by the middle of L. 6: in the word PROTECTOR, the stone cutter let a vacat because of an accident on the stone, and it is followed by ligature TE. We can observe a certain layout, and traces of ordinatio. Normally, small spaces were let between the words and, generally, the letters were well-spaced, even if ligatures were sometimes used:

12 IGLR 206 (drawing p. 214; photo in the planches) = GSMI 261 (photo Pl. 133.4); commented reedition of SPEIDEL 1995 (reproduced in AÉ 1995, 1338); Lupa 21173 (other photos). For the text, see below, note 130.

13 See FEUGÈRE 1994, 141-152.

14 See recently BALTŲ 2018, 30-35 (the prototypes are in Northern Italy, using in fact one of Mars’ images).

15 IAquileia III 2913; FRANZONI 1987, 39-40, No. 22 (Pl. IX.1); SPEIDEL 1990, 69-72 (= SPEIDEL 1992, 415-418); Lupa 23558.

16 FRANZONI 1987, No. 13 (Pl. V.1); Lupa 14013.

17 FRANZONI 1987, 30-31, No. 14 (Pl. V.2); Lupa 14017.

18 FRANZONI 1987, 29, No. 12 (Pl. IV.3); Lupa 14014.

19 CIL XIII 5980 (Lupa 27828).

20 CIL XIII 1848; CAG, 69/2, 2007, 337 (photo fig. 240); LASSÈRE 2007², II, 819-820 (with photo); Lupa 20221.

NE (L. 3, 4 [twice]), NN (L. 5), TE (L. 3, 6 [twice]). The first line is centered, while on the last line the letters of the two words of the final formula are spaced. The words are not divided by the end of each line. Usual abbreviations (DM, PROV, MIN), are seen, while all other words are written in full. The interpunction is systematic only for numbers (mostly elegant). In L.5, the stone cutter inscribed a parasite T after CONIVGE, maybe influenced by the preceding AVT. The beginning of L. 5 is shifted more leftwards. Some lines were carved by stonemason at the deepened ground²¹.

We propose the following text:

vac. D(is) vac. M(anibus). vac.

Tziampo, protector divini lateris, monumentum meum vac.
restauravi, oriundus ex regione Pieucense, prov(incia) Dacia Min(ore). v

4 Vixit · L · et volo neminem licere hic poni nis nesi filio suo v
Severo aut coniuge {t} sua. Militait annis cabalarius · VIII · vac. (!)
et ordinariis · XI · et protexit pro'tector annis · X · Si autem v (!)
alter ausus fuerit aperire davit fisco folles · XX · (!)

8 et civitati folle's · X · Toto militait annos · XXX · vac. (!)
v Va le te vac transi to res vac.

Translation: To the spirits of the dead! I, Tziampo, protector of the divine flank, restored my monument, originating from regio Pieucensis, province of Dacia Minor. He lived 50 years. And I want that nobody will be permitted to be deposited here except his son Severus or his wife. He served as horseman for nine years, as ordinarius for 11 years, and protected as protector for 10 years. But if another (person) dares to open (the sarcophagus), let him give the fiscus 20 folles and the city 10 folles. On the whole, he served for 30 years. Farewell, passers-by!

The composition of the epitaph is not completely typical, since the imprecatory formula is divided as well as the career: (I) generic funerary formula - (II) identity of the deceased, status, origo, and age - (III) imprecatory formula for the protection of the tomb, restricting the use of the sarcophagus to his family - (IV) military career - (V) continuation of the imprecatory formula, with the stipulation of two fines - (VI) end of the career, with the total years of service - (VII) farewell formula.

According to the redactor of the text, the soldier Tziampo is speaking of himself both in the 1st person (ll. 2-3: monumentum meum restauravi; l. 4, volo)²² and more often in the 3rd person (l. 4, vixit; l. 4, filio suo; l. 5, aut coniuge {t} sua; l. 5, militait; l. 6, protexit; l. 8, militait).

21 For example: L. 4, VIXIT; L. 5, SEVEROAVT...MILITAITANNIS. Besides, some letters tie by lines from above or bottom, for example L. 2 (MONVMENTVM) and 4 (NEMINEMLICERE).

22 The 1st person occurs in the bilingual epitaph of a soldier's son buried at Nicomedia: Φλ(άουτος) Μαξιμίνοσ σκουτάριος σινάτωρ άνέστησα τήν στίλλην τῷ υἱῷ μου Ὀκτίμῳ κτλ. Fla(vius) Maximinus scutarius sinator levavi statu(am) filio meo Octemo etc. (for this inscription, see below, § VII.1). The epitaph of Aurelius Saza centenarius, buried in Macedonia (see note 76), combines the 1st person (ic iacio qui vixi annis quinquaginta et militavi annis XXX et sum natus in provincia Dacia et militavi inter ecuites catafractarios Pictavensis succura Romani propositi) and the 3rd person (Aurelia Plactu coniux qui posit titulo bene merenti caro mar(i)to <s>uo), before addressing to the passer-by (resta viator et lege titulo nestro; dunc leges et <r>eausas).

L. 1: The epitaph is introduced by the traditional funerary formula; accordingly, the text, like the iconography shows no signs of Christianity.

L. 2: Tziampo. Only the cognomen of the deceased is given, while the gentilicium is omitted. Although the omission of the nomen occurs generally at a later date, in our case the context and the mention of folles strongly indicate a date under Diocletian (and his successors) or Constantine (see below, § IV); hence, the gentilicium of our protector must have been Valerius or, less likely, Flavius. Maybe the stone cutter simply forgot to write it or wrote it in painted letters – because there is a space for two letters if this first line of the main text started a bit to the left, as it occurs in L. 5. The name Tziampo is Thracian, with a new spelling (see below, § V).|| protector divini lateris: for this formula, see below, § VI.3.

L. 2-3: monumentum meum | restauravi. Monumentum is here used for sarcophagus²³. The use of the verb restauro, ordinary restricted to public monuments, is surprising in this funerary context and concerning moreover a sarcophagus.

L. 3: oriundus ex regione Pieucense, prov(incia) Dacia Min(ore). Both indications appear for the first time (see below, § V). The name of the province stands in Ablative, prov(incia) Dacia Min(ore), with two abbreviations²⁴.

L. 4: Vixit (annis) . L ., with the omission of ANNIS; we observe the same omission in l. 6. It is noticeable that we encounter annis (ll. 5-6) and annos (l. 8) in the same text in mixed formulas. H. MIHĂESCU pointed the preference for the Abl. pl. annis (ablative expressing the duration of time), favoured in middle and southern Italy, and in the Balkans, instead of the Acc. pl. annos (accusative of time), favoured in northern Italy, Gaul and Spain, as in the spoken language the plural of masculine nouns tended to a unique form in -i, as in It. anni and Rom. *ani*²⁵.

L. 4-5: et volo neminem licere hic poni nis nesi filio suo | Severo aut coniuge {t} sua, with an accumulation of negations. Cf. ic nemine(m) liceat poni nesi de meis (Ostia, CIL XIV 553); [non licet iuxta] corpus Afroditi[tes corpus alteri]us poni nisi a [me excepti] (Rome, CIL VI 12123); nemini licere neque aperir[e neque tr]ansferre neque de con[---] (Auximum, CIL IX 5860 = ILS 8234). Nesi is an archaism for sine (Festus 164, 1).

L. 5: Militait for militavit (also l. 8)²⁶; this indicative perfect without v occurs for some verbs (1st and 4th conjugations)²⁷.|| cabalarius for caballarius, without gemination²⁸; for this military term, see below (§ VI.1).

23 About the extraordinary group of inscribed sarcophagi (arcae) of soldiers of the late Roman army at Concordia (Italy), see HOFFMANN 1963. At Beroia of Syria, a legionary dedicavit monumentum suum in sempiternum Diis Manibus suis/ἀφιέρωσεν μνημείον αὐτοῦ διηνεκὲς θεοῖς καταχθονίοις καὶ δαίμοσι αὐτοῦ (CIL III 191 = IGLS II 455).

24 Ordinarily, this indication of origin is introduced by oriundus/oriunda and the preposition ex (oriundus ex), but other examples are built with the Abl., e.g. oriundo Pannunia Superiore, domu Cl(audia) Sav(ari)a (Apameia of Syria, IGLS IV 1375, in legio II Parthica).

25 MIHĂESCU 1978, 249-250, § 243; GAENG 1990, 120.

26 MIHĂESCU 1978, 191-192, § 144 (reducing the vowels u + i to the diphthong ui, then to i, cf. posit for posuit). Militait instead of militavit also occurs in the epitaphs of a legionary (Oescus, Moesia Inferior, ILBulg 52), of an equus singularis Augusti (Anazarbus, Cilicia, IAnazabos 67) and of a horseman of a numerus Dalmatarum (Makreš, Dacia Ripensis, AÉ 1938, 97).

27 MIHĂESCU 1978, 235, § 218 (with more examples); cf. renovait for renovavit in Upper Moesia (CIL III 14543 = IMS I 95) and in Numidia (CIL VIII 28046 = ILaIg I 2963).

28 MIHĂESCU 1978, 209, § 179.

L. 6: Ordinarius (instead of ordinarius), with the syncope of the unaccented vowel²⁹; for this rank, see below (§ VI.2).|| Protexit protector annis · X: a special formula, combining both the verb and the substantive (deverbative). We note the second epigraphic occurrence of this verb in its specific military sense, after the epitaph from Troesmis (Scythia) of Val. Thiumpo, dead at 45 years, qui militavit in leg(ione) XI Cl(audia), lectus in sacro comit(atu) lanciarius, deinde protexit annis V, missus pr(a)-effectus leg(ionis) II Hercul(iae), [e]git ann(is) II semis (see note 46). Tziampo served for many years among the protectores (for his career, see below, § VI.3).

L. 6-8: Si autem | alter ausus fuerit aperire davit fisco folles · XX · | et civitati folles · X, second part of the imprecation formula, with the stipulation of two distinct fines. Similar formulas are known elsewhere, as, for instance, on a sarcophagus of another protector, in Salona³⁰.|| Davit instead of dabit, because of the banal confusion between b and *v*³¹.|| Folles, a particular numismatic term (see below, § IV). Instead of the ungrammatical si autem | altera usus fuerit, we must divide si autem | alter ausus fuerit, with a precision not about the use (usus) but the daring (ausus), cf. similar formulas on epitaphs from Rome (si quis autem ausus fuerit vendere vel donare, CIL VI 17618) and Italy (si quis autem ausus fuerit ingringere vel aperire, CIL IX 984 = ILS 8237).

L. 8: Toto militait annos · XXX, the second part of the career sequence, about his long military service.

L. 9: Valete transitores, final address to the passers-by, in a plural form, typical of later epitaphs; cf. in the Propontic region an epitaph dated in 362 from Perinthus, with Valetis trasitoris (sic)³². Similar formulas for this topos occur in other epitaphs of soldiers, not only the banal *Vale viator*³³, but also *Valete viatores*³⁴, Havete transistores, *balete transistores*³⁵, *Avete [v]oi viatore[s]*³⁶ and *Vivate, valete superi felices*³⁷.

IV. The date: Diocletian or Constantine

The paleographic features of the so-called vulgar Latin indicate a later period, consistent with the proposed date belonging to the second half of the Tetrarchic period. As for the 29 ΜΙΗĂESCU 1978, 189-190, § 140 (reducing the vowels i + u to the diphthong iu, transformed thereafter into i after the main accent of the word, with plenty of examples).

30 CIL III 8742 = ILS 8249 = ISalonChr II 404 (second half of the 4th cent.): Fl(avio) Magniano, protectori, conpari carissimo, Sever de proprio hunc sarcofagum conparabit eundem solidis XV tantum et se in eodem una cum filia sua condi permisit. Si quis vero temptaverit in eodem sartofago ponere aliut corpus inferet fisci viribus auri · pondo · duo. Cf., in the same city, si quis vero supir duo corora nostra aliut corpus voluerit ordinare dabit fisci viribus argenti pondo quindecim (CIL III 9507 = ILCV 821 = ISalonChr III 2390 = ISalonChr I 161, dated in 378).

31 On this confusion, see ΜΙΗĂESCU 1978, 193-195, § 149-150.

32 IPerinthos 209 = AÉ 1998, 1179.

33 E.g. CIL III 7549 = ILS 1961 = ISM II (and VI.2) 373 = IGLR 5 (Tomis, Val. Felix, princeps officii pr(a)-esidis; corresponding, in the Greek version of the inscription, to χαῖρε, παροδείτα); CIL III 14214,28 = ISM II (and VI.2) 382 (Tomis, Fl. Vrsinia[nus], mil(es) officii pr(a)es); CIL III 405 = ILS 2792 (Thyatira, Val. Iuventinus, exarcus vexillationis eqq(uitum) Dal(matarum) comit(atensium) Ancialitana).

34 AÉ 1977, 791 = TAM IV.1 118 = CLEOr 26 = SGO II 09/06/14 (Nicomedia, Valerius Vrsicinus, protector).

35 CIL III 371 = ILS 2783 = IKyzikos I 482 (Cyzicus, Fl. Marcus, protector).

36 ISM IV 197 (Sacidava, Val. Onesimus, centurio legionis II Hercul(iae)).

37 AÉ 1977, 806 = CLEOr 42a (Nakolea, Fl. Aemilianus, duc(enarius) e numerum eq(uitum) Corn(utorum) sen(iorum)).

language, particular spellings are noticeable: lack of gemination (cabalarius); marks of pronunciation such as simplification (militait, twice), confusion between b and v (davit), and a syncopated form (ordinaris) may add the indication of duration with both annis and annos, or the strange syntax militait annis cabalarius VIII, with the intercalation of annis. Even if we are in a Hellenophone province, the use of Latin is consistent with the military status of the deceased, since Latin was the language privileged by Balkan soldiers of the later Roman army even in the Hellenophone regions; for more examples of the same period, in the larger region, see below, § VII)³⁸. No trace of Christianity is present, neither in the text nor in the iconography.

Another chronological criterion is suggested by the amount of the two fines, expressed in folles. Despite some presentations of follis as a large bronze piece, of about 9.69 gr. (1/32 of a libra), with 4% silver, this piece must be called in fact *nummus*³⁹ because of the monetary reform of Diocletian (about 294)⁴⁰. Follis, the Latin term for “bag” or “purse”, stands for a quantity of pieces (a sealed bag). Thus, folles were more likely only units of currency (reckoned in denarii), like purses, bags, and had two usages: a big follis (12,500 denarii, that is ten aurei, soon five aurei) and a small follis (125 denarii, that is 1/10 of one aureus)⁴¹. In our text, we should understand most likely the small follis, as the fines (multiples of ten) must exceed the price of the sarcophagus; for instance, a fine of 30 folles for premature appeals appears in a constitution of 315⁴². However, the follis depreciated sharply from the beginning of the 4th cent.

Folles are generally found in the inscriptions of the Western Mediterranean⁴³, including North Africa⁴⁴; especially, the known folles from Dalmatia are dated between 271 and the 4th cent. AD⁴⁵.

V. The name Tziampo

The name of the deceased, Tziampo, is Thracian and it is a new spelling of a name attested twice, each time with different forms:

- Thiampo (OnomThrac 363), peregrine name of a Thracian auxiliary soldier on a military diploma from Dacia Inferior, dated to 19 July 146 (AÉ 2011, 1791): alae I Asturum (...) ex gregale Thiamponi Dexaei f(ilio), Besso;

38 And at Thyatira (see notes 10 and 33), Laodiceia Combusta, Sebaste, Tyana (bilingual epitaph); Zeugma and elsewhere in Syria.

39 Ponderal reductions in 307 (1/40) and 310 (1/72), reaching under Constantine at a smaller dimension, with almost no silver.

40 Diocletian's reform replaced Aurelian's coin, and the older antoninianus, as the primary coin of the imperial monetary system. See JONES 1959; LAFAURIE 1975; COPE 1977; BRUUN 1979; WASSINK 1991 (inflation and financial policy); DEPEYROT 1992, 48-49 (49 n. 45-46, with mentions of big and small follis).

41 For the different types of folles, see CALLU 1969, 359-368. For bibliographic hints, we are grateful to Antony HOSTEIN.

42 C. Theod. xi 36. 2 (Qui a prejudicio appellaverit vel ab executoribus rerum antea statutarum adque alterius auditorii judicium poposcerit, triginta follium poena multetur).

43 Italy: AÉ 1990, 401.

44 CIL VIII 24609 = AÉ 1968, 559b = AÉ 1980, 903; AÉ 1952, 209 = AÉ 1953, 130 = AÉ 1954, 191; AÉ 1906, 138; AÉ 1914, 31; AÉ 1904, 215 = CIL VIII 2266.

45 CIL III 9597, 9582 (= 12872 = ILS 8253), 12933 (= 13896); AÉ 1994, 1372; AÉ 2010, 1202; ISalonChr II 715.

- Thiumpo (OnomThrac 365), cognomen of a famous Tetrarchic officer, on an epitaph from Troesmis (Scythia, end of 3rd-beginning of the 4th cent.): *Val(erius) Thiumpo, qui militavit in leg(ione) XI Cl(audia), lectus in sacro comit(atu) lanciarius, deinde protexit annis V, missus pr(a)efectus leg(ionis) II Herculiae, [e]git ann(is) II semis [e] et decessit, vixit ann(is) XXXXV, m(ensibus) III, d(iebus) XI, Aurel(ius) [---]*⁴⁶.

The different spellings of the first sound, th- and tz-, point to a particular consonant by the affrication of a voiceless dental before -i-. Normally, for some Thracian names, one common spelling variant was -σ-/-s- for -θ-/-th-, such as Βιλσης and Βιλθης in Eastern Macedonia (OnomThrac 36); cf. also Πιοθουθος and Πησουσος in Eastern Moesia Inferior (OnomThrac 271 and 272), as the theonym written Σουρηγησης in the same dedication (IGBulg V 5329), with a -θ- spirans; in contrast, elsewhere, the ordinary spelling is Suregethes/Σουρεγηθης. Given that Tziampo actually stands for Thiampo, we can now explain previous spellings that stand more likely for names already attested, as the hapax Βρουθενις for the more frequent Bruzenis (OnomThrac 69 and 70), or Βαθ(ε)ις (twice) for Batsis/Bazis (OnomThrac 28), and maybe Βιθας and Βισας for Biza/Bisa (OnomThrac 37 and 62). Moreover, a suffixed name like Mucathius/Mucatius (OnomThrac 236) must be the same as Mucasius/Mo(v)κασιος (OnomThrac 236), while different suffixations are Mo(v)-κασης (OnomThrac 234) and Μουκαθης (OnomThrac 236). For the latter, we can expect the same sound again as in Thiampo/Tziampo. Other Thracian names starting with tz- are attested in Latin script, mainly in the 3rd cent., like Tzinta/Tsinta (f.), Tzinto, ?Tzita and Tzitzis (OnomThrac 382 and 408), or with such fricatives⁴⁷, e.g. Atsiutsia (OnomThrac 11), Citzosis (OnomThrac 422), Mamutso (f.) (OnomThrac 206), Mamutzis (OnomThrac 206, here, a spelling variant of the common suffix -zis), Tsiru and Tsinna (OnomThrac 380, the last one being a variant of Sinna). We can also invoke the later spelling *Sudicentzus*⁴⁸ for Sudicenthus (OnomThrac 336), as well as, by the same time, *Aulucentius*⁴⁹ for the commoner Aulucenthus; or Tziper that occurs twice in Latin papyri⁵⁰ instead of the ordinary spelling Ζιπερ (Greek papyri and inscriptions)/Ziper (Latin inscriptions) (cf. OnomThrac 403-404).

Moreover, given the specification of the military diploma, we can assert that this his relatively uncommon name is of Thracian origin (and not of Daco-Moesian) facture; thus, the protector Tziampo was more likely born in the central parts of the Balkans.

46 CIL III 6194 = ILS 2781 = IGLR 236. This inscription will be reedited, for the first time with photos, and after its recent restoration (Musée d'Archéologie Nationale, Saint-Germain-en-Laye), by Dan DANA and Maxime ÉMION.

47 About the affricative tz-/ts- in the Thracio-Dacian space, see the rather confuse study of ALEXIANU - CURCĂ 2002.

48 CIL V 900 = IAquileia II 2775: Aurelius Sudicentzus, milix legionis XI Claudi(a)e (Sudicentzus IAquileia: SVDICEN|TZVS stone). Late Latin names could also have influenced the spelling in -ius, such as Laurentius (et -tzius), especially Constantius, Marcentius, Vincentius, etc.

49 CIL V 940 = IAquileia II 2778: Val(erius) Aulucentius, leg(ionis) XI Cl(audiae), milita(vit) gregales ann(os) XIII et centurio ann(os) III, et vixit ann(os) XL, et men(ses) V. See the previous note about late Latin names in -ius.

50 P. Sakaon 33 (ll. [12] and 19) and 34 (l. 11); see the good readings of AST 2001 (BL VII 176). The cognomen is that of the vir perfectissimus Valerius Ziper, praeses of Aegyptus Herculia, ca. 318-321 AD (PLRE I 993).

V. Regio Pieucensis in Dacia Minor

1. Regio Pieucensis

Unlike the epitaphs of certain soldiers of this period, the vicus is not specified, but the regio is indicated, in a territorial sense. The mention of the regio (built with oriundus ex) is typical of later Latin epigraphy, particularly for soldiers, and starts already in the 3rd cent. The geographical name of regio Pieucensis is new, with no parallels in the extant literary or epigraphic sources. We can safely exclude two possibilities: Pieuce*/Pieuca* cannot be identical to the well-known sector of Peuce in the Delta of Danube (the southern arm, St. George, and an island)⁵¹, which was never included in the two southern provinces of Dacia, nor to the former peregrine community of Picenses/Πικηνῶσι in Moesia Superior, a geographical name built with a Latin desinence after the river and the settlement Pincus (today the river Pek, and the site of Veliko Gradište on the Danube)⁵², that was by that time situated in Moesia Prima. The presence of a diphthong -(i)eu- excludes a specificity of the Daco-Moesian vocalism, that is the diphthongization of ĕ* en -ĵe- (OnomThrac, LXXII-LXXIII).

If we let aside the regio Scadiesiana mentioned in the epitaph of the *ducenarius Val. Fuscianus*⁵³, which is located most likely in one of the Balkan provinces, three regiones in a territorial/geographic sense are mentioned in inscriptions from Late Antiquity for the (generic) province of Dacia: regio Pieucensis (in “Dacia Minor”, the epitaph of the protector Tziampo), regio Scodrihe(n)sis (epitaph of the praetorian Aur. Passer)⁵⁴, and regio Serdicensis (epitaph of the praetorian Aur. Victo<r>inus, natione Dacisca)⁵⁵. If the third one indicates the territory of Serdica, the capital of Dacia Mediterranea, the second one is more likely linked to the topic epithet of Ἀπόλλων Σκοδρινός, known by the dedication IGBulg IV 2025 found at Opicvet (dept. of Sofia, North-West of Serdica), that is in the same province⁵⁶. The names are thus deriving from known or unlocalized cities and settlements: Pieuce*/Pieuca, Scodra* and *Serdica*⁵⁷.

2. Dacia Minor

Dacia Minor occurs for the first time in the epigraphic evidence⁵⁸ and seems to be an unofficial name for the new South-Danubian Dacia, by contrast with a Dacia Maior/Magna* that must have been the former Roman province. After the loss of Dacia, most likely in 260 (amissa Dacia), Aurelian⁵⁹ created a new province the

51 POLASCHEK 1938.

52 TIR L-34, 1968, 89 and 90. This toponym must be twice corrupted in Peuce oppidum (Iulius Honorius i 19), and Peice in Cosmographia Aethici i 19.

53 IKlaudiu polis 40 (at Bithynion/Claudiopolis).

54 CIL VI 2698.

55 CIL VI 2605 = ILS 2041 (SERDICN stone).

56 And less likely Scodra (in Praevalitana, diocese of Dacia); there was also a village in the territory of Synaus, in Mysia Abbaitis (MAMA X 396, Σκοδρινῶσι).

57 Another regio in the vicinity of Serdica, regio Dyptens(is/iium), appears in ILBulg 211: per fines civitatis Serdensium, regione Dyptens().

58 Unlike Armenia Maior and Armenia Minor.

59 Originating from the South-Danubian region, see note 120.

South of Danube, called Dacia nova in some literary sources⁶⁰. Placed between the two former Moesiae (Superior and Inferior), later renamed Prima and Secunda and covering only partially their initial territory⁶¹, this new Dacia was divided into Dacia Ripensis, alongside the Danube, with the capital at Ratiaria, and Dacia Mediterranea, in the middle of the Balkan Peninsula, with the capital at Serdica⁶². A diocese of the Balkans was called “Dacia”, regrouping later, in addition, the provinces Moesia Prima, Praevalitana and Dardania. Accordingly, many soldiers of the late Roman army gave their province as Dacia (a generic name, without the precision Ripensis or Mediterranea), presenting themselves as Dacus or, with a later term, Daciscus (see below)⁶³. Dacisci also implies, by derivation and diminutive suffixation, this impression of a smaller Dacia, so a Dacia Minor.

However, we may recall a passage in the cosmography of Geographus Ravennas, about a Dacia Minor separated by the river Elbe from Magna Dacia, later called Gipidia, that is the former (North-Danubian) province⁶⁴. The same compiler mentions in the fourth book Dacia Prima and Dacia Secunda, also called Gipidia, where the Huns and the Avars inhabited at that time. Such denominations are actually inspired by Iordanes, Get. xii, 74 (Gothia, quam Daciam appellavere maiores, quae nunc Gepidia dicitur), xliii, 226 and v, 37⁶⁵. In the same way, we can understand the South-Danubian “Scythia Minor”⁶⁶, which was never an official name, as opposed to *Scythia magna*⁶⁷. Also, because of the chronology, it is impossible to think of 60 Lactantius, De mort. persec. xi 1 (Dacia nova); Anonymus Valesii v 3 (nova Dacia, as origin of Licinius). About Aurelian’s policy in this region, see VELKOV 1998.

61 SHA, Aurel. xxxix 7 (cum vastatum Illyricum ac Moesiam deperditam videret, provinciam Transdanuvina <m> Dacia a Traiano constitutam sublato exercitu et provincialibus reliquit, desperam eam posse retineri, abductosque ex ea populos in Moesia, conlocavit appellavitque suam Daciam quae nunc duas Moesias dividit); Eutr. ix 15. 1; Suda, s.v. Δακία χῶρα.

62 Cf. an inscription dated 283, on a bronze plaque found at Bov, on the top of the Haemus: Gaianus pr(a)eses finem posui inter du[as D]acias dila[psum ---] (ILBulg 188; VELKOV 1998, 158-159).

63 This derivative concerns, in fact, the inhabitants of the new Dacia created by Aurelian South of Danube, while militēs Dacisciani, among Gallienus’ units, indicate troops from (abandoned) Dacia (SHA, Claud. xvii 3; see ZAHARIADE – PHELPS 2002); also, the Dacisci (SHA, Aurel. xxxviii 4); the adjective Daciscus is also employed by Lactantius, De mort. persec. xxvii 8. Cf. also ND, Or. xl 21 (militēs Dacisci, Mediolana, in Moesia Secunda) and xlii 24 and 28 (auxilium primorum Daciscorum at Drobeta and auxilium secundorum Daciscorum at Burgus Zonus, both in Dacia Ripensis). For the same formation, cf. the rare secondary form Puniscus from Punicus (second cognomen of Q. Latinius Primus Puniscus, at Ūreu in Africa Proconsularis, AÉ 1975, 876).

64 Anon. Rav. i 11: Quarta ut hora noctis Northomanorum est patria, que et Dania ab antiquis dicitur. Cuius ad frontem [Alpes vel] patria Albis Maurungani certissime antiquitus dicebatur. In qua Albis patria per multos annos Francorum linea remorata est. Et ad frontem eiusdem Albis Dacia minor dicitur et dehinc super ex latere magna et spatiosa Dacia dicitur. Que modo Gipidia ascribuntur. In qua nunc Vnorum gens habitare dinoscitur.

65 See ARMBRUSTER 1969, 429-430 (quite confusing); BREZEANU 1984, 117-118; DILLEMANN 1997, 94.

66 The first mention is Strabo vii 4, 5 (C. 311), where Μικρά Σκυθία stands not only for Dobruđa, but also for the maritime shores until Crimea. The 6th cent. compiler John Malalas ascribed to Trajan the foundation of two provinces behind Danube, Dacia prima and Dacia secunda (Chronogr. xi 11, p. 209 Thurn: καὶ πέραν τοῦ Δανουβίου ποταμοῦ ἐπὶ τὰ δυτικὰ μέρη ἐπαρχίας δύο, ἄστινας ἐκάλεσε Δακίαν πρῶτην καὶ δευτέραν), that never existed.

67 Anon. Rav. iv 1 (In portione autem Iaphet filii Noe, quam phylosophi Europam appellaverunt, sistuntur patrie, id est patria que dicitur Scythia, que in omnibus heremosa existit. Et eaque Maior Scythia appellatur, quam Iordanis cosmographus in modum fungi... scarifum esse dixit) (also iv 6, ex super scripta Maiore an alternative (and unattested) name of Dacia Inferior, one of the three divisions of the greater Trajanic Dacia realized by Hadrian (with Dacia Superior and Dacia Porolissensis). Another literary mention, in a peculiar kind of text, the Sibylline Oracles, refers to wars (during Antoninus Pius) against Britons, Moors, μεγάλοι Δάκοι and Arabians⁶⁸. Here, the “big Dacians” stand for the Dacians outside the Roman province; for the modern scholars, they are the “free Dacians”, an expression coined on the convenient model of modern Germania libera. Also, the motif of Germania Magna, much favoured by moderns, is known in Antiquity a sole mention, that is Γερμανία Μεγάλη in Ptolemy, Geogr. ii 11.

We can encounter more or less developed formulae of the origo on epitaphs: for instance, around 300, the legionary (?) *Aur. Clarianus, nat[us in Moes(ia) I]nferio[re, reg(ione)] Mar(cianopolitana), vic[o ---]diano*⁶⁹. Other mentions of soldiers from South-Danubian Dacia indicate the province (or the diocese) and sometimes the vicus or the regio, or the ethnics Dacus/Daciscus:

- province + regio: around 300, the praetorian *Aur. Passar, domo Dacia, regione Scodrihese*⁷⁰;

- province + vicus: after 324, *Fl. Marcus, protector, natus in Dacia provincia, in vico Valentiniano, militavit in vixillatione Fesianesa annis XXIII, unde factus protector i[n]deque militavit in scola protectoru<m> annis cuincue*⁷¹; *Valerius Vrsicinus, protector de provincia Dacia, vico Diosenanis*⁷², *fecit stipendia XXIII*⁷³; *Fl. Aemilianus, duc(enarius) e numerum eq(uitum) Corn(utorum) sen(iorum), vixit ann(nos) XLVII, militavit stupendia XXVII, natus in Dacia, civit[a]te Fla(via) Singedonum*⁷⁴;

- province and city (standing for regio): the 4th cent. stela of Romula, *oriundae ex prov(incia) D[ac(ia)], cives Aquisene[nsis], daughter of Romulianus, p(rae)p(ositus) eqq(uitum) Dalm(atarum) Beroensium comitate(nsium) et Fl(avia) Maxima casta coniux eius*⁷⁵; Scythia) (et Guidonis Geographica 125, Maiores Scythia), cf. Iordanes, Get. x 62: Partem Moesiae, quae nunc a magna Scythia nomen mutata minor Scythia appellatur. See also Anon. Rav. iv 14: Iterum ad partem quasi meridianam, ut dicamus ad spatiosissimam terram, sunt patrie spatiosissime quae dicuntur Datia prima et secunda, quae et Gipidia appellatur, ubi modo Vni, qui et Avari, inhabitant.

68 Oracula Sibyllina xii 81.

69 CIL V 892 = IAquileia II 2733. Cf. the epitaph at Viminacium of Sabinianus, pro(tec)tor, ortus in provincia Dardania, reg(ione) Vlpiane[nse?, vico?] Dasa (IMS II 142).

70 CIL VI 2698.

71 CIL III 371 = ILS 2783 = IKyzikos I 482 (Cyzicus).

72 The stone has DI(ENA)NIS (ll. 3-4), pointing thus to a particular consonantism (between -s- and -z-); some editors (as ŞAHİN) preferred Dissena | (an)nis, which seems less likely. We may add a Dacian toponym, curial(es) territ(orii) Suc(idavensis) (Sucidava, Dacia Inferior, IDR II 190 = IGLR 277), and the Thracian cognomen of Aurel. Dituouanus, strator trib(uni) (Sacidava, Moesia Inferior, GSMI 285 = ISM IV 187), both written with a sigma.

73 AÉ 1977, 791 = TAM IV.1 118 = CLEOr 26 = SGO II 09/06/14 (Nicomedia).

74 AÉ 1977, 806 = CLEOr 42a (Nakolea, dated in the year 356). See DREW-BEAR 1977, with the reading Io(viorum), and more recently the commentary of COLOMBO 2010, 81-90, No. 1, with the better reading IQ instead of IO, so <e>q(uitum). As Singidunum was in fact in Moesia Prima, Dacia means here the diocese.

75 KOLB – IVANOV 2016 (Abritus, Moesia Secunda); better readings and comprehension in SALOMIES 2018; other photos: Lupa 20851. Cf., at Colonia Agrippinensium, the epitaph of Donatus ex pro[te]ctorib[us], civis Afer, veteran dead at 45 years (IKöln² 401).

- only the province: Aurelius Saza, centenarius (...) *ic iacio qui vixi annis quinquaginta et militavi annis XXX et sum natus in provincia Dacia et militavi inter ecuites catafractarios Pictavensis succura Romani propositi*⁷⁶; the bilingual epitaph erected by [Fl.? Vitalianus, circ(itor) s(ub) c(ura) Severini p(rae)p(ositi)], or (iundus) Dacia/ Βεϊταλειανός, κερκείτωρ σεουρα (= sub cura) Σευηρείνου πρεποσειτού, γενηθέντα ἐν Δακεία, for his wife Aur(elia) Ceze/Κυζη), dead at 15 years and pos ducto vixit dies XV (dead after 15 days of marriage)⁷⁷.

- the ethnic (derived from the name of the province): origo of an anonymous *eques singularis Augusti, [natione D]aciscu[s]*⁷⁸; the praetorian *Aur. Victo<r>inus, natione Dacisca, regione Serdic(e)n(se)*⁷⁹; in the 4th cent., the sarcophagus of *Martinianus, ex protectoribus, germen Dacisqus*⁸⁰.

Such geographical indications displaying the province and the regio are current for soldiers, starting with the 3rd cent.⁸¹. While the standard formula is natus in provincia, we may also encounter natus provincia, already in an epitaph of the first half of the 3rd cent., for a praetorian nat(us) provinc(ia) Dacia (CIL VI 2425 = ILS 2042). Among the provincial indications in the 4th cent., we may quote: an anonymous *de numero M[---]m seniorum, natus in provi[nc]ia ---⁸²; an anonymous [--- nu*]m(eri) *eq(uitum) Dalm(atarum), de succur(a) [--- p(rae)p(ositi)?, natus in (provincia?) Pannonia Infe]riore, in regione Myrsen(a)*⁸³; the son of a *cent(enarius) de Aureliacos, Aur. Benedictus, nat(us) pro(vincia) Cappa(docia), Ma(zacae) T(h)ermas Basilicas*⁸⁴; the *protector Fl. Verinus, nat(us) Pan(nonia) prov(incia)*⁸⁵. This final example is a generic indication since the previous provinces Pannonia Superior and Pannonia Inferior were divided at that time (Pannonia Prima and Savia, respectively Pannonia Secunda and Valeria).

76 CIL III 14406a = ILGR 205 = CLE 1878 = IG X.2.2 109 = IDRE II 360 = CLEOr 13 = Kinch 34 = IKato Makedonia II 356 (Edessa of Macedonia); commemorated by his wife Aurelia Plactu.

77 CIL III 14184.9 = ITyana 101 (Tyana); with the reading of DANA 2019, 176-178, No. 46.

78 CIL VI 3320 = DKR 618 = IDRE I 60 (Rome).

79 CIL VI 2605 (Rome), accordingly from Dacia Mediterranea.

80 CIL V 6244 = ILCV I 811a (Mediolanum).

81 A Pannonian legionary of the 3rd cent., o[ri]iundus ex regione Bassiane(n)si, desideratus in Dacia (Gorsium, Pannonia Inferior, CIL III 3336 = RIU VI 1552a = IDRE II 285 = TitAq IV 1948); a legionary ex provincia Moesia Super(iore), reg(ione) Viminac(io) (Cyrthus, Syria, CIL III 195 = IGLS I 150); a legionary and (centurio) ex b(ene)fic(iario) praefectorum, natus provincia M[oe]sia Superiore, reg[io]ne Scupina (?), Da(r)dan[ia] me genuit, tenuit G[er]ma[n]ia (CIL XIII 6823 = CLE 407; SCRINA ms.); a protector, ortus in provincia Dardania, reg(ione) Vlpiane[n]se?, vico? Dasa (Viminacium, IMS II 142); a praetorian nat(ione) Bessus, natus reg(ione) Serdica, vico Magari (CIL X 1754); a soldier [civi]s Supriane(n)ses, [reg(ione) Serdi]ce(n)se, vico Colp[---]io (ICVR VII 20202 = AÉ 2004, 326); a dedication of soldiers of the imperial guard, cives prov(incia) T(h)raci(a)e, reg(ione) Serdicens[e], MIDNE Potelese (CIL VI 2819 = 32567); a legionary nat(us) vico Bitalcost(-), reg(ione) Pautaliense (CIL VI 2772 = 32660); the relative of a soldier, natus ex provincia Maesia Inferiore, regione Nicopolitan(a)e, vico Sapisara (CIL VI 2933); a praetorian nat(ione) Mysia Superiore, reg(ione) Ratiare(n)se, vico C[-]nisco (CIL VI 2730). About the indications of origins for Thraco-Moesian soldiers in Rome, and the mentions of regiones, see CENATI 2018 and CENATI 2021; about regiones and territoria in the lower Danubian provinces, see MATEI-POPESCU 2019.

82 AÉ 1976, 668 (Eumeneia of Phrygia).

83 IGLS XIV.2 565 (Aire/Şanamein, in Southern Syria); new reading of DANA 2019, 174-176, No. 45. As in this case, we can signal the usage of previous provincial names, for instance Ουαλέριος Ρομύλλος, οὐετρανός, ἀναφερόμενος ἦν ἐν Παννονίας ἀνωτέρας (IGLS II 523).

84 AÉ 1977, 818 (Zeugma of Syria).

85 DANA et alii 2020 (Zaldapa, Scythia).

In the same way, we must understand the generic indication of a provincia Dacia for both Daciae Mediterranea and Ripensis for other soldiers in the 4th cent.

For now, four protectores born in the (Southern) province(s) of Dacia are attested by inscriptions: two at Nicomedia (Val. Vrsicinus, Tziampo), one at Cyzicus (Fl. Marcus) – so, around one of the Tetrarchic capitals –, and a fourth in Mediolanum (Martinianus), in another point concerned by military presence⁸⁶.

VI. Tziampo's career: caballarius - ordinarius - protector

1. Caballarius

Caballarius, built with the suffix -arius, typical for occupations or qualifications⁸⁷, is a mounted trooper, synonym of alaris in more *glossaria*⁸⁸ and, in our context, an alternative for eques. Even if the impression was that this technical term was favoured especially in medieval Latin – its avatars are It. cavaliere, Fr. chevalier, Sp. caballero –, it was, in fact, already in use in Late Antiquity⁸⁹. As a Greek loanword – one in the Latin many of the military vocabulary –, it is well-attested in papyri and Byzantine texts, betraying a great vitality moreover⁹⁰: καβαλ(λ)άριος (var. καβαλλέριος, καβελάριος) and its many derivatives, such as the adj. *καβαλλαρικός*⁹¹. It is important to stress that its mention in our example is the first one found in a military context, since the papyrological and Greek textual examples occur some centuries later⁹². Generally, it was thought that the military use of eques was later (according to the papyri) and that previously it meant a military servant (Gr. ἵπποκόμος), but it diverges greatly from the meaning our epitaph gives.

Tziampo started his military service either as an eques legionis, or in a vexillatio, or in a mounted numerus, whose name was unfortunately not given, unlike other more detailed careers (see below).

86 The sarcophagus from Mediolanum of Martinianus, ex protectoribus, germen Dacisqus, mentions his service of 45 years; he prepared it when he was 60 years, hoping to live much more, until 99 years (CIL V 6244 = ILCV 811).

87 SOLIN 2003, 179-180.

88 CGL IV 315 and V 594-595; see TLL, II, 5 and III, 3.

89 Cf. by the same time as our epitaph, because of the mention of f(ol)(es) for prices concerning the crossing of the lake of Tunis (Africa Proconsularis), homo pedester as opposed to homo caballaris (Maxula, CIL VIII 24512 = ILS 9457 = ILPBardo 403: 1 folles, respectively 4 folles). A Christian epitaph from Rome dated 363 mentions [Con]stantius caballariu[s] (ICVR IX 24865).

90 See SCHULTHESS 1924; DARIS 1960, 209; DARIS 1991², 47-48; ΚΑΗΑΝΕ – ΚΑΗΑΝΕ 1982, 133, 135; ΜΗΛΑΪΣΚΟΥ 1993, 373-374, § 278; LBG I.1 724 (the family); ΚΡΑΦΤ 2008, 54-55 with n. 150-151 (papyri); ΖΕΡΒΑΝ 2019, 57-58 (with J. KRAMER).

91 First occurrence in Edict. Diocl. xv 56a ([m]ola caballa[ri]a <cum> lapidibus/μύλος καβαλλαρικός λίθινος) and xix 33 (τάπητ καβαλλαρικός) (ed. Giacchero).

92 See, among many other mentions, the graffito Πλῆνις κα[βα]λλαρίου Ἐρωθιτῶ(ν), at Monesis (Chams el-Din, Kharga Oasis), so in legio secunda Valentiniana (SEG XXXVIII 1766 = AÉ 1988, 1068, 4th cent.); many occurrences of καβαλ(λ)άριος in O. Abu Mina (first half of the 7th cent.); the mention of cavalymen in P. Gascou 32, for a mounted unit of bucellarii (Oxyrhynchos, 612 AD). On caballarii in Egypt, see GASCOU 1978, 228-229.

2. Ordinarius

Ordinarius has in our text the generic sense of centurio, which was employed by that time not only for legions but for any kind of units, as they were commanders of an ordo (centuria). This period of both continuity and change also shows the maintenance of the old term of centurio for the units inherited from the pre-Tetrarchic military history (legions, alae, cohortes) and the use of the alternative and new term of centenarius for the units of the Tetrarchic-Constantinian reform⁹³.

The same promotion as protector from the rank of ordinarius is clearly attested in the epitaph of Florius Baudio, of equestrian rank, dead at 40 years, after 25 years of service: *vir ducenarius, protector ex ordinario leg(ionis) II Ital(icae) Divit(iensium)*⁹⁴. A Greek epitaph from Laranda (Isauria) furnishes the condensed career of Μάξιμος κεντηνάρης – πρωτήκτωρ, Μυσιατικός ἀπὸ ληγεῶνος πρώτης Ἰταλικῆς, therefore promoted protector from the rank of centenarius, after serving in *legio I Italica*⁹⁵.

3. Protector

The title of glory of Tziampo was, however, that of protector, member of an elite unit of the late Roman army; his title is mentioned moreover twice: protector divini lateris (l. 2) and protexit protector (l. 6). Only a few inscriptions bearing the elaborate formula protector divini lateris, guardian of the emperor's divine flank, are known in Rome⁹⁶, Umbria⁹⁷, Dalmatia⁹⁸, Upper Moesia⁹⁹, Arabia¹⁰⁰. We can add to the list L. Iunius Iunillus, v(ir) p(erfectissimus), com(es) divini lateris, praeses pr(ovinciae)

93 Concerning ordinarii, see the older papers of STEIN 1933 and GILLIAM 1940, and the recent study of JANNIARD 2007 (on centuriones ordinarii and ducenarii; S. JANNIARD, in ISalonChr II, 2010, 1028). The terms ordinarius/ordinatus started to be employed for centurions by the beginning of the 3rd cent. (see the discussion in FAURE 2013, I, 203-206). Cf. by the same Tetrarchic epoch the career of Val. Longinianus, vixit annos XLV, militavit optio leg(ionis) XI Clau(diae) ann(os) XV, centurio ord(inarius) ann(os) VI, natus in Mensi(a) (sic) Infer(iore) castell(um) Abritanor(um) (CIL V 942 = ILS 2670 = *IA*quileia II 2779); on the epitaph of his two daughters, we encounter the father Val. Castus, centur(io) ord(inarius) leg(ionis) I Iov(iae) Scyt(hicae) una cum Val(erio) Valeriano centen(ario) socero suo posuit (Carsium, Scythia, AÉ 1989, 641 = 1990, 866).

94 CIL XI 4787 = ILS 2777 (Spoletium, in Umbria); maybe in the context of Constantine's campaign against Maxentius, in 212, which is confirmed by the nomen of the parens of the deceased, Val. Vario, optio leg(ionis) II Divit(ensium).

95 ENGELMANN – ÜNER 1992, 3-4, No. 3 (photo Pl. IV) (SEG XLII 1264). Was it centenarius in legio I Italica, before his promotion as protector, or in another unit, after a service in the legion from Moesia Secunda? In his case, the ethnic adjective Μυσιατικός (cf. Lat. Moesiacus) can designate both the geographic-provincial origo or the by-name epithet Moesiaca of that legion. See a legionary civis Mensiacus dead at Burdigala (CIL XIII 595 = ILA-Bordeaux 69; other readings by DANA 2015).

96 Epitaph of Fl. Gaudentius, v(ir) d(evotus), p(ro)t(ector) l(ateris) d(ivini) (CIL VI 32940 = ICVR I 427 = ILS 2785, 5th cent.).

97 Dedication of Aurelius Faustus, prot(ector) divini lateris Aug(usti) n(o)stri (Ocriculum, CIL XI 4082 = ILS 4002, under Decius?); epitaph of Fl. Concordius, protector divinoru[m] laterum et pr(a)epositus iuniorum (Fanum Fortunae, CIL XI 6222 = ILCV 3827 = ILS 9204, second half of the 4th cent.).

98 Refection of the thermae in Narona by M. Aur. Valerius, v(ir) p(erfectissimus), duce[n]a[ri]us, ex protectorib(us) lateris divini (CIL III 1805 = ILS 5695, in 280).

99 Epitaph of the wife of Aurel. Maior ex protectoribus divini lateris (Ulpiana, AÉ 1981, 731, end of the 3rd cent.).

100 Refection of the statio and its praesidium in 333 (Azraq), among others fortifications of a sector in Arabia, [cur]ante V[incentio] p[ro]tec(tore) divinum laterum (ALQUOT 2016; AÉ 2016, 1791).

*M(auretaniae) C(aesariensis)*¹⁰¹. The complete title was protector divini lateris Augusti nostri, a high-sounding title, in accord with the gradual sacralisation of the imperial person and the proximity invoked by these elite soldiers¹⁰².

The term protector is attested from the beginning of the 3rd cent.¹⁰³, used as an honorific title under Valerianus and Gallienus for the officers selected among centurions in the *comitatus*¹⁰⁴. In the first period, they were selected among the field officers from ranks, and admitted to the presence of the emperor during the adoratio of the purple ceremony (as in the 4th cent.), when this title was granted to the most competent or most highly recommended junior officers at the end of their ordinary service. At the latest in the 280's, the protectores had a commander, maybe comes divini lateris which must have been the office of C. Valerius Diocles before acceding to the imperial throne as Diocletian¹⁰⁵. Under the same emperor, the protectores became a specific corps in the central general staff¹⁰⁶, since they are definitively structured, as proved by the existence of an actuarius protectorum at Nicomedia (see below, § VII.1). Under the orders of a magister militum praesentalis, they could serve in the proximity of the emperor and the magistri militum and high military officials, including in the provinces. The protectores could also be assigned - individually or in small groups -, to various tasks and missions, such as logistics, intelligence and recruiting matters¹⁰⁷. In the 4th cent., their corps served as a “vivier de recrutement pour pourvoir aux commandements des unités militaires, tant dans l'armée centrale que régionale. On y éprouvait essentiellement, pendant une période de trois à cinq ans en moyenne, leur aptitude à exercer de futures tâches de commandement, en particulier logistiques”¹⁰⁸.

Tziampo, dead at the age of 50, after a service of 30 years (both indications seem however rounded), was therefore recruited in his 20's. His career is split into three almost equal periods: 9 years as caballarius, 11 years as ordinarius, 10 years as protector. As other protectores promoted by merit, this occurred after 20 years of honourable service and the rank of centurion¹⁰⁹. In the elite unit, he served for a long time and died before receiving a higher responsibility, as some protectores that were promoted to the rank of tribunus, *praefectus*¹¹⁰ or *praepositus*¹¹¹, and later comes or *dux*¹¹².

101 AÉ 1975, 8823 (Ureu).

102 SPEIDEL 2008, 687-688; ÉMION 2020, 479.

103 SPEIDEL 1986 (a part of the singulares of the emperor, of the prefecti praetorio and of governors).

104 See the classical study of CHRISTOL 1977.

105 ÉMION 2020, 481.

106 DREW-BEAR – ZUCKERMAN 2004, 423.

107 DIESNER 1968; F. PRÉVOT – S. JANNIARD, in ISalonChr II, 2010, 728-729; briefly JANNIARD 2015. In his unpublished dissertation, Maxime ÉMION defines them as both bodyguards and officers in formation, insisting on the distinction, since the mark of honour of protector constitutes a dignitas, a dignity title immediately below that of praepositus and tribunus (ÉMION 2017; see now briefly ÉMION 2020).

108 F. PRÉVOT – S. JANNIARD, in ISalonChr II, 2010, 726.

109 See table 3 in ÉMION 2020, 484.

110 The case of Val. Thiumpo, praefectus legionis II Herculiae (Scythia).

111 Cf. the epitaph found at Sacidava (Scythia) of [Fl. ---], faqtus do{m}mesticus protector fuit an(nis) VIII, promotus (ad) Sucid[a]v(am), gessit an(no) I cuneo eq(uitum) II Stab(lesianorum) (in service at Sacidava, Moesia Secunda) (BĂRBULESCU – BARNEA 2018; AÉ 2018, 1403).

112 An epitaph from Arelate offers the most complete description of a military career in post-Constantine Tziampo's initial unit is not mentioned, but since he served as caballarius, he was might be an eques lanciarius. We may mention and the epitaph of 352 from Aquileia of *Ma[---? ---]nes, natus in Dardania, [militavi inter Mo]esiacos annis triginta et quinque, exxibi (= exivi) ex protectoribus*¹¹³. In service from 317, his long career suggests that he was a veteran granted with the title of protector after his retirement. As demonstrated by M. SPEIDEL. The Palatine legion of the Moesiaci was principally formed from mobile detachments of the legions XI Claudia and I Italica garrisoned at Aquileia¹¹⁴. The epitaph of Fl. Verinus, prot(ector), natus Pan(nonia) prov(incia), an(nis) XVIII, vixit an(n)is XXXXII, militavit in leg(ione) Pannoniciana, commemorated by Fl. Florinus biar(chus), dates from the middle or the first decades of the second half of the 4th cent.; after about 15 years of service in a Palatine legion (more likely than comitatensis), namely the legio Pannoniciana, and probably an advancement not mentioned (centenarius?), he was selected for the schola protectorum, among the emperor's bodyguards, and died during a mission (deputatio) in the province of Scythia, at Zaldapa¹¹⁵.

As shown by Maxime ÉMION, who insisting on the over-representation of comitatenses and palatini soldiers among the protectores, the legions were served Val. Thiumpo¹¹⁶, Florius Baudio¹¹⁷ and Maximus, during the transition years between the end of the first Tetrarchy and the beginning of the sole reign of Constantine, belonged to the imperial comitatus. We have now enough evidence showing that the rank before the promotion as protector or domesticus was, in the 4th cent., that of centurio or centenarius: Fl. Abinnaeus (the papyrological folder P. Abinn., in 346) was ducenarius, Maximus was centenarius, Dassianus was *centurio (primus)*¹¹⁸, Florius Baudio and Tziampo were ordinarii.

times: Fl. Memorius, v(ir) p(erfectissimus), qui milit(avit) int(er) Iovianos annos XXVIII, pro(ector) dom(esticus) an(nos) VI, prae(positus) Lanciari(i)s sen(ior)ibus an(nos) III, comes rip(a)e an(num) I, com(es) Mauret(aniae) Ting(itanae) an(nos) IIII, vix(it) an(nos) LXXV (CIL XII 673 = ILS 2788); see DREW-BEAR – ZUCKERMAN 2004, 419-426 (he leaves his legions at the beginning of the 350s).

113 IAquileia III 2913. See also the career of one of the last praetorians, Val. Tertius: militi corti(s) X pr(a)etori(a)e, qui vixit annis XXXVI, me(n)s(es) III, dies XV, militabit legione M(o)esiaca annis V, inter lanciarios annis XI, in pr(a)etoria ann[is -], centuria Salbi (CIL VI 2759). Cf. a similar career of legionaries recruited from the Thracian regions and promoted as praetorians on an epitaph from Caesarea of Mauretania (CIL VIII 21021 = ILS 2038): Aurelius Vincentius, miles coh(ort)is tertiae praetoriae, centuria Maximini, militavit in legione undecima Claudia annis V, in praetoria annis XI, vixit annis XL, civis T(h)rax. Memoria fecerunt cives de rebus ipsius bene merenti.

114 On the Moesiaci and the creation of the Palatine legions, see SPEIDEL 1990, 69-72.

115 DANA et alii 2020. The sister unit of the Moesiaci, the Pannoniciani, was created from the vexillations of Pannonian legions in Italy. Accordingly, the best soldiers serving among the Moesiaci and the Pannoniciani constituted, since their Tetrarchic creation and during the 4th cent., a pool for the protectores.

116 CIL III 6194 = ILS 2781 = IGLR 236 (dead about 320, at Troesmis, Scythia): qui militavit in leg(ione) XI Cl(audia), lectus in sacro comit(atu) lanciarius, deinde protexit annis V, missus pr(a)efectus leg(ionis) II Hercul(iae), [e]git ann(is) II semis.

117 Epitaph of Spolegium (CIL XI 4787 = ILS 2777): Florio Baudioni, viro ducenario, protectori ex ordinario leg(ionis) II Ital(icae) Divit(iensium), dead at 40 years, after 25 years of service.

118 Promoted tribunus, from domesticus (epitaph at Maionia in Lydia, DREW-BEAR et alii 2004; AÉ 2004, 1396 a = SEG LIV 1218A).

VII. Nicomedia, capital of Diocletian: military epitaphs in the Bithynia region

The protector Tziampo, buried at Nicomedia, which was Diocletian's capital and residence¹¹⁹, and also of Galerius and Licinius, was a native of the new South-Danubian Dacia, the homeland of many soldiers of Balkan origin that became emperors, some of them from Dacia Ripensis, like Aurelian¹²⁰, Galerius¹²¹ (and his nephew Maximinus Daia, who was scutarius, protector and finally tribunus) and Licinius.¹²²

1. Evidence at Nicomedia

From Nicomedia we now have more epitaphs of soldiers of the late Roman army, especially protectores:

- Claudius Herculanus, protector Aureliani Augusti, dead at the age of 40. This junior staff officer and guard of Aurelian was commemorated by his blood brother, Claudius Dion[y]sius, protector Augusti, frater ipsius. Depicted on the rectangular stele as a horseman, in a barbarica dress (according to M. P. SPEIDEL), he must have died during Aurelian's march to Palmyra when the emperor spent winter in Byzantium (271/272)¹²³. On the upper part of the stele, above the epigraphic field (58.5 x 71 cm), Georges PERROT, who saw it in 1861 during his trip in Anatolia, makes a sign with a schematic drawing a damaged relief (height 64 cm) of a horseman with a spear, turned to the right. In contemporary publication, two Greek antiquarians give a different drawing (of a complete relief)¹²⁴; however, this image reproduced by M. P. SPEIDEL is likely anachronistic because of the curious resemblance with an armatolos or klephtes from the first half of the 19th cent.

- Valerius Vincentius, actuarius protectorum, commemorated by his wife Antia, after six years of common life. His sarcophagus (180 x 120 cm), discovered in 1861, contained two bodies wrapped in line, the soldier being buried with his weapons¹²⁵;

- the marble plaque (73 x 60 x 4 cm) of Valerius Vrsicinus, protector de provincia Dacia, vico Diosenanis, dead at the age of 50, after 23 years of service, commemorated by his frater (comrade rather than a real brother?) *Valerius Manica, prot(ec)tor*¹²⁶;

119 SESTON 1946, 94-95. A new Tetrarchic painted relief with embracing emperors was recently discovered at Nicomedia (ŞARE-AĞTÜRK 2017; ŞARE-AĞTÜRK 2018; ABBE – ŞARE-AĞTÜRK 2019; ŞARE-AĞTÜRK 2020).

120 Born in Moesia Superior (future Dacia Ripensis), cf. SHA, Aurel. iii 1 (ut nonnulli, Dacia Ripensi) and iii 2 (Moesia genitum), Eutr. ix 13. 1 (Dacia Ripensi oriundus) and Epit. Caes. xxxv 1. See KIENAST et alii 2017⁶, 225.

121 Born in the village renamed Romulianum (after his mother), also in Moesia Superior (later Dacia Ripensis), cf. Epit. Caes. xl 16 (ortus Dacia Ripensi), Eutr. ix 22. 1 and Iord., Rom. 298. See KIENAST et alii 2017², 272.

122 He was ex Dacia nova (Anon. Vales. v 13), Dacia oriundus (Eutr. x 4. 1); cf. also Socrates, HE i 2. 1. See KIENAST et alii 2017⁶, 282.

123 KLEONYMOS – PAPADOPOULOS 1867, 163-164, No. 12 (drawing p. 163); PERROT 1872, I, 6-7 (drawing p. 7); CIL III 327 = ILS 2775 = TAM IV.1 137 (with Di Manes); SPEIDEL 1997, 232-233 (reproducing p. 233, fig. 1, the drawing from Kleonymos and Papadopoulos).

124 The drawing from the report of PERROT shows a damaged relief, without the heads of the rider and the horse.

125 KLEONYMOS – PAPADOPOULOS 1867, 164, No. 13 (drawing); CIL III 6059 = 6988 (“repertam esse arcam a. 1861 clausam plumbo, continuisse cadavera duo bysso involute”) = ILS 2779 = ILCV 526 = TAM IV.1 275.

126 ŞAHİN 1973, 52-53, No. 27 (photo Pl. 6) (corrections in ŞAHİN 1975, 47-48) (AÉ 1977, 791); LEBEK 1976, 170-174 (for the epigram); TAM IV.1 118; VULPE 1979; ŞAHİN 1985, 120-121, No. 50; CLEOr 26; SGO II

- only the extreme end of the name at genitive (in big letters) of an anonymous, [--- ---]ου πρωτήκτορος¹²⁷;
- the bilingual Christian epitaph erected by Fl. Maximinus, scutarius sinator, for his son of 5 years¹²⁸;
- we must add to this list two other soldiers: (1) a sarcophagus (προγονική λάρναξ) found at Tuzla, 3 km near Nicomedia, for Kytheria and her husband Valerius Pomponius, dead at 45 years, that served in Diocletian's guard as the centurion (έκατοντάρχη στρατευσαμένω έν τῷ ιερῷ παλατίω¹²⁹ ἔτη -); the eventual amend concerns the fiscus, the city (of Nicomedia) and the village of Arbillanoi¹³⁰; (2) the fragmentary epitaph of an anonymous, ἀναφερόμεν[ος έν τῷ ιερῷ παλατίω ἔθηκα τήν πύ]ελον ἔμαυτῶ κα[ι τέκνοις κτλ.]¹³¹.

2. Evidence in the larger Bithynian region

Many other epitaphs of soldiers of the late Roman army in the neighboring regions well illustrate, as observed by M. P. SPEIDEL, “the growing importance of Bithynia as a garrison area for the imperial armies at the time the capital of the empire moved to Nikomedeia and Byzantion”¹³²:

- at Chalcedon, two soldiers: (1) the sarcophagus (σορός; coffin: 219 x 114 x 98 cm; lid: 229 x 123 x 52 cm) displaying the epitaph in a tabula ansata of Φλ. Εὐτύχης ἀπό προτικτόρων, destined to himself (still alive) and his children¹³³; it is important to stress that the sarcophagus of this veteran contained more skeletons¹³⁴; (2) the fragmentary Christian epitaph of a [δο]μειστικός (or a member of his family), maybe from the second half of the 6th cent.¹³⁵.

- at Prusias ad Hypium, as many as five soldiers: (1) Val. Titianus, BB, decanus num(eri) scut(ariorum), natione Dalmata, deat at the age of 45, after 22 years of

09/06/14; ÜZÜNOĞLU 2013, 217-220, No. 6 (photo p. 219, fig. 3) (with DM).

127 IGR III 10 = TAM IV.1 383 (PLRE I 1033, Anonymus 193).

128 Stela with fronton (83 x 58 x 4.5/9 cm), CIL III 14188 = ILCV I 2180 = TAM IV.1 367; republished by FEISSEL 1987, 435-436 (photo Pl. III.2) (SEG XXXVII 1081): Φλ(άουιος) Μαξιμίνοσ σκουτ[ά]ριος σινάτωρ ἀνέστησα τήν στίλλην τῷ υἱῷ μου Ὀκτίμω ζήσαντι ἔτη ε', ἡμέρας ιε'· τμηθίς ὑπό ιατροῦ ἔμαρτύρησεν. ✱ Fla(vius) Maximinus scutarius sinator levavi statu(am) filio meo Octemo, vicxit annos V, dies XV, precisus a medico, ic postus est ad martures.

129 That is, the sacrum palatium.

130 TAM IV.1 285 (9 years of marriage). Cf. the famous stela found at Ulmetum (Scythia) of Val. Victorinus, biarc(h)us, qui militavi[t] in sacro palatio ann(os) VII[-], and was killed at the age of 40, in 324, at the “battle of Chalcedon”, in proel[i]o [R]o<ma>norum Calced[o]nia contra aversarios decessit (IGLR 206 = GSMI 261); see the commented reedition of SPEIDEL 1995 (reproduced in AÉ 1995, 1338), that places this soldier of the imperial guard among the scutarii. On 8th September 324, at the Battle of Chrysopolis (Üsküdar), Constantine's army won against Licinius.

131 TAM IV.1 333. Cf. at Perinthus Οὐαλέριος Ἀνδρόνεικος ἀναφερόμενος έν τῷ ιερῷ παλατίω (IPerinthos 188, by the same time).

132 SPEIDEL 1984, 156 (= SPEIDEL 1992, 411). We let aside the epitaphs from Constantinople, mainly of foederati, and those from northern Propontis.

133 After κ(αι) τοῖς γλυκυτάτοις μου τέκνοις only Φλ is inscribed, after that a blank space was let by the stonemason.

134 ASGARI – FIRATLI 1978, 33-34, 76, No. SR. 9 (photo Pl. XXI, fig. 39); IKalchedon 71.

135 IKalchedon 81.

service, commemorated by his comrade *Vrsus ex numero ipso*¹³⁶; this soldier from western Balkan area also served in the imperial guard, and the abbreviation BB was developed as b(ar)b(aricatus) by M. P. SPEIDEL¹³⁷; (2) Κλ[αυδι]ο[ς], that served 11 years, and thereafter was scutarius for 13 years (ἔστρατεύσατο ἕτ(η) αἶ' καὶ ἰς τοὺς σκουαρίους ἕτη ιγ'), commemorated by his brother *Maximinus*¹³⁸; (3) the Christian epitaph of Τιράνης, κόμης ἀπὸ πριμικρίων¹³⁹; (4) the Vth cent. Christian epitaph of Georgios' son, τοῦ λαμπροτάτου σχ<ο>λαρίου καὶ μαγίστερος δρακῶνον¹⁴⁰; (5) much more later, after the 6th cent., the epitaph of Θεόδοτος, ὀπίτων βάνδου τριτου Ἀρμενίω(ν)¹⁴¹.

- at Prusa ad Olympum, two soldiers: (1) the Christian epitaph of Σάββας ἀπὸ τριβούνου¹⁴²; (2) a honorific Christian statue for [Φλ.?] Φαυστίνος ὁ λαμπρ(ότατος) καὶ περιβλ(επτος) ἀπὸ τριβ(ούνων) νοταρίων¹⁴³.

- at Bithynion/Claudionopolis, two soldiers: (1) Val. Fuscianus, du[ce]narius ex regione Scadiesiana, vico (not written, the stone cutter let a vacat), from a vexillatio eqq(uitum) cat(afractariorum) clib(anariorum) s(ub) c(ura) Valentis p(rae)p(ositi), dead at 50 years after 35 years of service, commemorated by a collegium whose pater was Severianus dux (or ducenarius)¹⁴⁴; the plaque features a horseman in the style of the “Thracian Rider”, in a hunting scene; regio Scadiesiana is most likely another Balkan region; (2) the fragmentary epitaph of the officer [Val.?] Serenus, whose plaque features a horseman again - bearing a pilleus Pannonicus however - in the style of the “Thracian Rider”, in a hunting scene¹⁴⁵.

- at Nicaea, two soldiers: (1) the Christian epitaph of Φλ. Ἰταλᾶς ἀπὸ προτηκτόρων, whose monument (τὸ κοιμητήριον) was also intended for his wife Aur. Romula, his son Aur. Romulus, his daughter-in-law Aur. Vrsa and the wife's brother *Aur. Senecianus*¹⁴⁶; (2) much later, the epitaph of Ἰλλοῦς πριμικρίος (with his family)¹⁴⁷;

- at Strobilos, the 6th cent. Christian epitaph of [πριμ]εῖκ(ήριος) Ἰλλούστ[ριος], dead at 20 years¹⁴⁸.

- at Cyzicus, *Fl. Marcus protector, natus in Dacia provincia in vico Valentiniano, militavit in vixillatione Fesianesa annis XXIII, unde factus protector, i[n]deque militavit in scola protectoru<m> annis cuincue*¹⁴⁹. He was married to Mariana, had a 136 AÉ 1951, 30 = IPrusias ad Hypium 101.

137 See SPEIDEL 1997, 233-234. The same abbreviation occurs in the epitaph of Aur. Vale(n)s, BB n(umeri) eqq(uitum) scut(ariorum) s(ub) c(ura) Marini p(rae)p(ositi) (Intercisa, RIU V 1205).

138 IPrusias ad Hypium 95.

139 IPrusias ad Hypium 133.

140 IPrusias ad Hypium 120. See SPEIDEL 1985 (= SPEIDEL 1992, 390-395).

141 STAUNER 2020.

142 IPrusa ad Olympum I 218.

143 IPrusa ad Olympum II 1095.

144 PM, II, 334, No. 1401 (photo Pl. 204); the particular study of SPEIDEL 1984 (photo Pl. 15) (= SPEIDEL 1992, 406-413) about the catafractarii clibanarii and the rise of the later Roman mailed cavalry (AÉ 1984, 825 = IKlaudiu polis 40).

145 SPEIDEL 1984, 156 (photo Pl. 16) (= SPEIDEL 1992, 411) (IKlaudiu polis 36).

146 INikaia I 557.

147 INikaia I 558 (photo Pl. XXXII); Isaurian name (see FEISSEL 2012, 9).

148 IApameia (Bithynien) und Pylai 135.

149 CIL III 371 = ILS 2783 = IKyzikos I 482; brief comment in LASSÈRE 2007², II, 812-813, No. 448; PLRE I slave (puer) Thalarion who was later manumitted; the monument was erected by his brothers in arms Perula, Frontinus, Superianus, Maxentius and Vrsinus.

Like the epitaph of the Pannonian protector died at Zaldapa (Scythia), which was recently published, this new inscription from Nicomedia enriches an essentially epigraphic folder that strengthens the general impression that a majority amongst the first generations of protectores came from the Balkano-Danubian provinces (Thrace, Moesia, South-Danubian Dacia, Dardania, Pannonia)¹⁵⁰, thus proving that Thracio-Moesian and Pannonian regions remained during Late Antiquity privileged recruitment pools for the Roman army. The clichés about the martial qualities of Balkan recruits are strengthened during Late Antiquity: according to Expositio totius mundi et gentium 50 (middle of the 4th cent.), Thrace furnished for the army the most remarkable men, brave in war (maximos habens viros et fortes in bello; propter quod et frequenter inde milites tolluntur)¹⁵¹, while Ammianus Marcellinus evoked the bellatrices Thraciae gentes and Vegetius praised the martial character of Dacians, Moesians and Thracians, thus illustrating the stories about Mars' birth among them¹⁵². Judging only after the onomastics, we may now give the list of more protectores with Thracian cognomina:

- F[ll]a. Bityanus, prot(ector) domes(ticus) (PLRE I 162), commemorating his father Fla. Dinnius, pr(a)ef(ectus) vehi(culorum), dead at 60 years, after 36 years of service (Čomakovci, dept. of Pleven, in eastern Dacia Ripensis)¹⁵³;

- Bulper, veteranus ex prote^rct^roribus, commemorating in a Christian epitaph from Rome his wife *Dando*¹⁵⁴;

- Fl. Buraido, [prote]ctor eschol(a)e ped[itum], commemorating his wife Vrsina, filia Vrsiniani ex trib(uno) that died in 390, aged 27, at Sebaste (Phrygia Pacatiana)¹⁵⁵;

- Fl. Moco, domesticos, de patria Artacia de vico Calso, commemorating his wife Dona (= Domna) at Beroia of Thrace¹⁵⁶;

557-558 (Marcus 4).

150 ÉMION 2017 gathered a prosopographic annex of 138 protectores and domestici; 25 are originating from these provinces (14 in Pannonia, 6 in Moesia, 5 in Thrace).

151 See later Justinian, Nov. 26 pr. 1: Ἐκεῖνο τῶν ἀνωμολογημένων ἐστὶν ὅτι περ, εἰ τις τὴν Θρακῶν ὀνομάσειε χώραν, εὐθὺς συνεισέρχεται τῷ λόγῳ καὶ τις ἀνδρείας καὶ στρατιωτικοῦ πλήθους καὶ πολέμων καὶ μάχης ἔννοια· ταῦτα γὰρ ἐγγενῆ τε καὶ πάτρια τῇ χώρᾳ καθέστηκεν ἐκείνη.

152 Ammianus Marcellinus xxvi 7. 5; Vegetius i 28 (Dacos autem et Moesos et Thracas in tantum bellicosos semper fuisse manifestum est, ut ipsum Martem fabulae apud eos natum esse confirmant).

153 CIL III 14412,4 = ILBulg 160 = GSMI 512; DREW-BEAR – ZUCKERMAN 2004, 424-425; [M BITIANVS CIL: Ziabitianus Gerov]; for the reading of the nomen and cognomen, see MOLIN 1998 (cf. AE 1998, 1126); DANA 2014, 195 (informations and photo of Nikolaj Šarankov).

154 ICVR VIII 22406; the wife died at 40 years, after 24 years of marriage. Both names are hapax, most likely Thracian.

155 MAMA XI 72 = AÉ 2012, 1499 (replacing other readings) (marriage of 14 years).

156 CIL III 14207,15 = ILCV 478 = SGLIB 192. Artacia must be linked to a population in that region (for the literary sources, see DETSCHEW 1957, 28) and the topic epithet of Ἡρα Ἀρτακηνή (IGBulg III.1 980, dedication from Philippopolis).

- the famous Traianus Mucianus (PIR² T 300; PLRE I 609-610, Mucianus 5), from Philippopolis, in the second half of the 3rd cent.¹⁵⁷;
- Perula (PLRE I 689), a comrade of Fl. Marcus, dead at Cyzicus (see note 149) (if protector);
- Val. Thiumpo, protector, promoted praefectus legionis II Herculiae (PLRE I 910, see above).
- our Tziampo, dead at Nicomedia.

We may add two protectores that ended their days in Dacia Ripensis, most likely their place of origin: Fl. Martialis ex protectoribus, commemorated as patronus by Maxentius gener et serv{f}i}us suus at an advanced age (100 years!), at Vratarnica nearby Romuliana¹⁵⁸; Fla. Licinianus, [e]x pr(o)t(ectoribus), dead at 60 years (?), commemorated by his homonymous son at Manastirište (dept. of Vraca)¹⁵⁹.

Finally, it is essential to notice the expenses implied by Tziampo's sarcophagus, not only commanded but restauratus, and moreover personalized by a peculiar iconography betraying his Thracian origin and displaying the military status and a carefully inscribed Latin epitaph, despite the Greek-speaking milieu, giving details not only about his career but also about his family life (that is, an unnamed wife¹⁶⁰ and a son Severus), as occurs often in other epitaphs of soldiers¹⁶¹, that were ordinarily inserted in different social and professional groups.

157 See CHRISTOL 1977.

158 CIL III 14594 = ISalonChr III 1356 = IMS III.2 109 (PLRE I 563, Martialis 2).

159 MAŠOV 1975, 36-37, No. 1 (photo and drawing p. 36, fig. 1ab), with the reading [e]x pr(ae)t(orio). The nomen and the paleography of this stela (not recorded in AÉ) assure a date in the 4th cent. and, therefore, the quality of protector.

160 Cf. an epitaph from Bostra (Arabia), Coniux Bitiano, de numero mil(itum?) Constan(tiacorum?) (IGLS XIII.1 9174, with the reading of DANA 2014, 194-195, No. 11), where the name of the wife of this Thracian soldier is not given.

161 For the formulary of the epitaphs of praetorians, protectores, domestici and members of the scholae palatinae, see YOUNOU 2011; concerning the family life in the later Latin epigraphy, see SHAW 1984, in partic. 472 (nothing, for the soldiers, "a far higher propensity than average to commemorate themselves before death").

Fig. 1. Sarcophagus of Tziampo, protector divini lateris

Fig. 2. The two skeletons inside the coffin

Fig. 3. The left side scene ("Thacian horseman" motif)

Fig. 4. The right side scene (standing soldier)

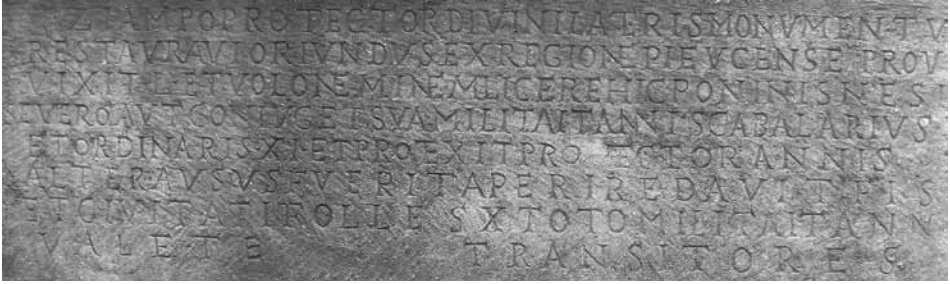

Fig. 5. The inscription (left side)

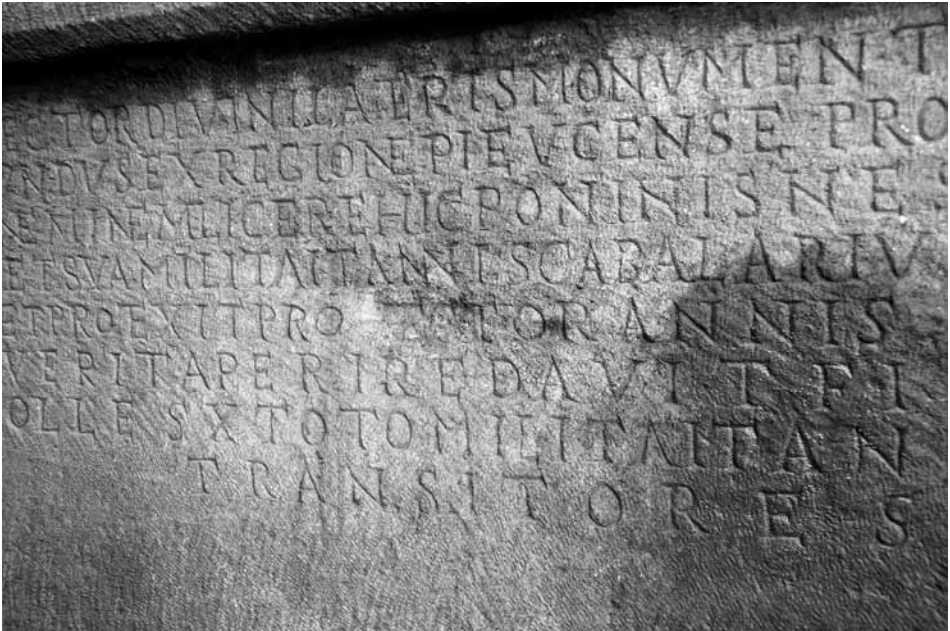

Fig. 6. The inscription (central part)

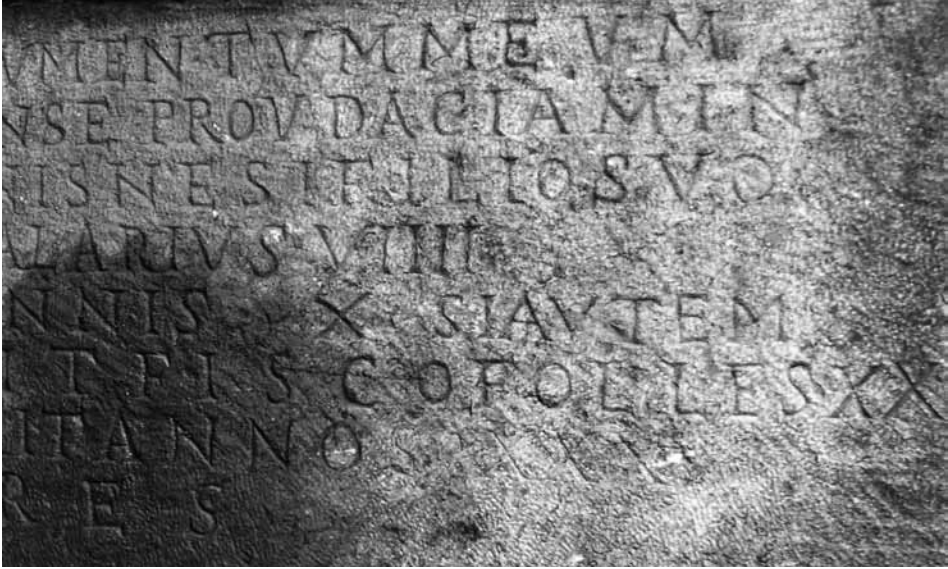

Fig. 7. The inscription (right side)

Fig. 8. Stela of Claudius Herculanus (Photo: Istanbul Archaeological Museums)

Fig. 9. Epitaph of Valerius Titianus (Photo: Hüseyin Sami Öztürk)

Fig. 10. Stela of Claudius Herculanus (redrawn by U. C. ARDAL based on Perrot's drawing)

Fig. 11. Stela of Claudius Herculanus (Kleonymos and Papadopoulos' drawing)

Bibliography

ABBE – ŞARE-AĞTÜRK 2019

M. B. Abbe – T. Şare-Ağtürk, The New Corpus of Painted Imperial Roman Marble Reliefs from Nicomedia: A Preliminary Report on Polychromy, Technè 48, 100-109.

ALEXIANU – CURCĂ 2002

M. Alexianu – R. Curcă, Témoignages épigraphiques sur l'affrriquée tz/ts en latin et en thraco-dace, Studia Antiqua et Archaeologica 8, 309-314.

ALIQUOT 2016

J. Aliquot, Un duc d'Orient en Arabie, Syria 93, 157-170.

ARMBRUSTER 1969

A. Armbruster, Evoluția sensului denumirii de "Dacia": încercare de analiză a raportului între terminologia politico-geografică și realitatea și gândirea politică, Studii 22.3, 423-444.

ASGARI – FIRATLI 1978

N. Asgari – N. Firatlı, Die Nekropole von Kalchedon, eds.: S. Şahin – E. Schwertheim – J. Wagner, Studien zur Religion und Kultur Kleinasiens. Festschrift für Friedrich Karl Dörner zum 65. Geburtstag am 28. Februar 1976, I, Leiden (EPRO 1), 1-92.

AST 2001

R. Ast, Tziper, not Q. Iper, ZPE 137, 229-230.

BALTY 2018

J.-Ch. Balty, Cippes, autels funéraires et stèles militaires d'Apamée: typologie des monuments, modèles iconographiques et ateliers, Syria 95, 15-63.

BĂRBULESCU – BARNEA 2018

M. Bărbulescu – A. Barnea, Cuneus equitum II Stablesianorum la Sucidava (Moesia Secunda), Pontica 51, 423-431.

BREZEANU 1984

S. Brezeanu, Les "Daces" de Suidas: une réinterprétation, RESEE 22.2, 113-122.

BRUUN 1979

P. Bruun, The Successive Monetary Reforms of Diocletian, Museum Notes (American Numismatic Society) 24, 129-148.

CALLU 1969

J.-P. Callu, La politique monétaire des empereurs romains de 238 à 311, Rome (BÉFAR 214).

CENATI 2018

C. Cenati, Thrakische und moesische Regionen in Weih- und Grabinschriften stadtrömischer Soldaten (1.-3. Jh. n. Chr.), eds.: L. Vagalinski – M. Raycheva – D. Boteva – N. Sharankov, Proceedings of the First International Roman and Late Antique Thrace Conference "Cities, Territories and Identities" (Plovdiv, 3rd-7th October 2016), Sofia (Bulletin of the National Archaeological Institute) 44, 141-149.

2021

C. Cenati, L'indicazione dell'origo nelle iscrizioni dei soldati di provenienza danubiana e balcanica a Roma, eds.: F. Mitthof – C. Cenati – L. Zerbin, Ad ripam fluminis Danuvi. Papers of the 3rd International Conference on the

- Roman Danubian Provinces. Vienna, 11th-14th November 2015, Vienna (Tyche Supplementband 11), 101-120.
- CHRISTOL 1977
M. Christol, La carrière de Traianus Mucianus et l'origine des protectores, Chiron 7, 393-408.
- COLOMBO 2010
M. Colombo, Iovii Cornuti, auxiliarii miliarenses equites e Hiberi: correzioni testuali ed esgetiche a tre epigrafi tardoantiche di militari romani, Arctos 44, 81-98.
- COPE 1977
L. H. Cope, Diocletian's Price Edict and Second Coinage Reform in the Light of Recent Discoveries, NC 17, 220-226.
- ÇOBAN – AVŞAR 2019
O. Çoban – O. A. Avşar, Nicomedia Batı Nekropolünde Ele Geçen Eserlerin Restorasyon ve Konservasyon Çalışmaları, SELVI et alii (eds.), 171-186.
- DANA 2014
D. Dana, Notices épigraphiques et onomastiques I, ZPE 188, 181-198.
- 2015
D. Dana, Un légionnaire de Mésie dans l'Empire des Gaules: relecture et commentaire de l'épithaphe CIL, XIII, 595 = ILA, Bordeaux, 69, HiMA 2, 101-111.
- 2019
D. Dana, Notices épigraphiques et onomastiques IV, ZPE 210, 159-179.
- DANA et alii 2014
D. Dana – D. Moreau – S. Kirov – I. Valeriev, Un protector issu de la legio Pannoniana dans une épithaphe de Zaldapa (province de Scythie), JES 3, 167-188.
- DARIS 1960
S. Daris, Il lessico latino nella lingua greca d'Egitto, Aegyptus 40.3-4, 177-314.
- 1991²
S. Daris, Il lessico latino nel greco d'Egitto, Barcelona (Estudis de papirologia i filologia bíblica 2) (second ed.).
- DEPEYROT 1992
G. Depeyrot, Le système monétaire de Dioclétien à la fin de l'Empire romain, RBN 138, 33-106.
- DETSCHER 1957
D. Detschew, Die thrakischen Sprachreste, Vienna (reimpr. 1976).
- DILLEMANN 1997
L. Dillemann, La cosmographie du Ravennate, Bruxelles (Latomus 235) (ouvrage édité avec préface et notes additionnelles par Y. Janvier).
- DIESNER 1968
H.-J. Diesner, Protectores (domestici), RESuppl, XI, 1113-1123.
- DKR
M. P. Speidel, Die Denkmäler der Kaiserreiter. Equites singulares Augusti, Cologne-Bonn, 1994.

DREW-BEAR 1977

Th. Drew-Bear, A Fourth-Century Latin Soldier's Epitaph at Nakolea, HSCPh 81, 257-274.

DREW-BEAR et alii 2004

Th. Drew-Bear – H. Malay – C. Zuckerman, L'épithaphe de Valeria, veuve du tribun Dassianus, LE BOHEC – WOLFF 2004, 409-418.

DREW-BEAR – ZUCKERMAN 2004

Th. Drew-Bear – C. Zuckerman, Gradatim cuncta decora: Les officiers sortis du rang sous les successeurs de Constantin, LE BOHEC – WOLFF (eds.), 419-430.

EKİN-MERİÇ – DREYER 2021

A. Ekin-Meriç – B. Dreyer, Inschriften auf Stein-Sarkophagen von der Hisardere-Nekropole von Nikaia, Gephyra 21, 47-63.

ÉMION 2017

M. Émion, Des soldats de l'armée romaine tardive: les protectores (III^e-VI^e siècles ap. J.-C.), Diss. Univ. Rouen (<https://tel.archives-ouvertes.fr/tel-01740232/document>).

2020

M. Émion, Les protectores Augusti, eds.: C. Wolff – P. Faure, Corps du chef et gardes du corps dans l'armée romaine: actes du septième Congrès de Lyon (25-27 octobre 2018), Lyon (CEROR 53), 473-496.

ENGELMANN – ÜNER 1992

H. Engelmann – A. B. Üner, Inschriften aus dem Museum von Karaman (Lycaonia), AAWW 129, 1-24.

FAURE 2013

P. Faure, L'aigle et le cep: les centurions légionnaires dans l'Empire des Sévères, I-II, Bordeaux (Scripta Antiqua 54).

FEISSEL 1987

D. Feissel, De Chalcédoine à Nicomédie: quelques inscriptions négligées, Travaux et Mémoires 10, 405-436.

FEISSEL 2012

D. Feissel, Inscriptions of Early Byzantium and the Continuity of Early Onomastics, eds.: J. Davies – J. Wilkes, Epigraphy and the Historical Sciences, Oxford (Proceedings of the British Academy 177), 1-14.

FEUGÈRE 1994

M. Feugère, Casques antiques: les visages de la guerre de Mycènes à la fin de l'Empire romain, Paris.

FRANZONI 1987

C. Franzoni, Habitus atque habitudo militis: monumenti funerari di militari nella Cisalpina romana, Rome (Studia Archaeologica 45).

GAENG 1990

P. A. Gaeng, La flexion nominale à l'époque du latin tardif: essai de reconstruction, ed.: G. Calboli, Latin vulgaire – Latin tardif II. Actes du II^{ème} Colloque international sur le latin vulgaire et tardif (Bologne, 19 Août-2 Septembre 1988), Tübingen, 111-128.

GILLIAM 1940

J. F. Gilliam, The Ordinarii and Ordinati of the Roman Army, TAPhA 71, 127-148.

- GASCOU 1978
J. Gascou, Ostrakon grec tardif de l'IFAO, BIFAO 78, 227-230.
- GÖLCÜK et alii 2020
R. Gölcük – Ş. Aydıngün – K. Çibuk, Kocaeli Müze Müdürlüğü Nikomedeia Batı Nekropolü Kazıları, LICHTENBERGER et alii (eds.), 117-129 (Pl. 28-46; Colour Pl. 12-13).
- GSMI
S. Conrad, Die Grabstelen aus Moesia Inferior: Untersuchungen zu Chronologie, Typologie und Ikonographie, Leipzig 2004.
- HOFFMANN 1963
D. Hoffmann, Die spätrömischen Soldatengrabschriften von Concordia, MH 20, 22-57.
- IDRE
C. C. Petolescu, Inscriptions de la Dacie Romaine: inscriptions externes concernant l'histoire de la Dacie (I^{er}-III^e siècles), I-II, Bucharest 1996-2000.
- IGLR
E. Popescu, Inscriptiile grecești și latine din secolele IV-XIII descoperite în România, Bucharest 1976.
- IMS
F. Papazoglou (ed.), Inscriptions de la Mésie Supérieure, Belgrade 1976-.
- ISalonChr
E. Marin et alii, Salona IV: inscriptions de Salone chrétienne IV^e-VII^e siècles, I-II, Rome-Split 2010 (CollEFR 194/4).
- ISM
Inscriptiones Scythiae Minoris Graecae et Latinae. Inscriptiile din Scythia Minor grecești și latine, Bucharest-Paris 1980-.
- JANNIARD 2007
S. Janniard, Centuriones ordinarii et ducenarii dans l'armée romaine tardive (III^e-VI^e s. apr. J.-C.), eds.: A. S. Lewin – P. Pellegrini, The Late Roman Army in the Near East from Diocletian to the Arab Conquest. Proceedings of a Colloquium Held at Potenza, Acerenza and Matera, Italy (May 2005), Oxford (BAR IS 1717), 383-393.
- 2015
S. Janniard, Field Officers: Late Empire, ed.: Y. Le Bohec, The Encyclopedia of the Roman Army, II, Chichester, 403-404.
- JONES 1959
A. H. M. Jones, The Origin and Early History of the Follis, JRS 49, 34-38.
- KAHANE – KAHANE 1982
H. Kahane – R. Kahane, The Western Impact on Byzantium: The Linguistic Evidence, DOP 36, 127-153.
- KIENAST et alii 2017⁶
D. Kienast – W. Eck – M. Heil, Römische Kaisertabelle: Grundzüge einer römischen Kaiserchronologie, Darmstadt.
- KINCH
P. O. Juhel, P. M. Nigdelis, Un Danois en Macédoine à la fin du 19^e siècle: Karl Frederik Kinch et ses notes épigraphiques. Ενας Δανός στη Μακεδονία του

- τέλους του 19ου αι.: ο Karl Frederik Kinch και οι επιγραφικές του σημειώσεις, Thessaloniki 2015 (Μακεδονικά επιγραφικά 1).
- KLEONYMOS – PAPADOPOULOS 1867
M. Kleonymos – Chr. Papadopoulos, Βιθυνικά, ή επίτομος μονογραφία της Βιθυνίας και των πόλεων αυτής, Constantinople.
- KOLB – IVANOV 2016
A. Kolb, R. T. Ivanov, Romulianus und seine Familie: Ein praepositus equitum Dalmatarum Beroe(ensium comitatensium aus dem moesischen Abritus, ZPE 199, 294-299.
- KRAFT 2008
U. Kraft, Eine Reitermatrikel der Tetrarchenzeit aus Ägypten (P.Strasb. L 8), APF 54, 17-78.
- LAFaurIE 1975
J. Lafaurie, Réformes monétaires d'Aurélien et de Dioclétien, RN 17, 73-138.
- LASSÈRE 2007²
J.-M. Lassère, Manuel d'épigraphie romaine, I-II, Paris.
- LBG
E. Trapp (ed.), Lexikon zur byzantinischen Gräzität, besonders des 9.–12. Jahrhunderts, I-II, Vienna, 1994-2017.
- LEBEK 1976
W. D. Lebek, Drei lateinische Hexameterinschriften, ZPE 20, 167-177.
- LE BOHEC – WOLFF 2004
Y. Le Bohec – C. Wolff (eds.), L'armée romaine de Dioclétien à Valentinien I^{er}: actes du Congrès de Lyon (12-14 septembre 2002), Lyon (CEROR 26).
- LICHTENBERGER et alii 2020
A. Lichtenberger – T. Şare-Ağtürk – E. Winter – K. Zimmermann (eds.), Imperial Residence and Site of Councils: The Metropolitan Region of Nicaea/Nicomedia, Bonn (Asia Minor Studien 96).
- Lupa
Ubi erat Lupa: Bilddatenbank zu antiken Steindenkmälern (<<http://www.lupa.at>>).
- MAŠOV 1975
S. Mašov, Epigrafski pametnici ot Vračanski okrąg, Arheologija (Sofija) 17.3, 36-43.
- MATEI-POPESCU 2019
F. Matei-Popescu, Territoria and regiones in the Lower Danubian Provinces, edç; L. Mihailescu-Bîrliiba, Limes, Economy and Society in the Lower Danubian Roman Provinces, Leuven-Paris-Bristol (CT) (Colloquia Antiqua 25), 95-106.
- MIHĂESCU 1978
H. Mihăescu, La langue latine dans le Sud-Est de l'Europe, Bucharest-Paris. 1993
H. Mihăescu, La romanité dans le Sud-Est de l'Europe, Bucharest.
- MOLIN 1998
M. Molin, Pour une relecture de l'inscription CIL, III, 14412⁴, CCG 9, 281-284.
- OnomThrac
D. Dana, Onomasticon Thracicum (OnomThrac): Répertoire des noms indigènes

- de Thrace, Macédoine Orientale, Mésies, Dacie et Bithynie, Athens 2014 (Μελετήματα 70).
- ÖZTÜRK – DEMİRHAN ÖZTÜRK 2019
H. Öztürk – E. Demirhan Öztürk, Nikomedeia'dan Yeni Yeni Yazıtlar, eds.: H. Selvi et alii, Uluslararası Orhan Gazi ve Kocaeli Tarihi-Kültürü Sempozyumu, Kocaeli, 136-137.
- PERROT 1872
G. Perrot, Exploration archéologique de la Galatie et de la Bithynie, d'une partie de la Mysie, de la Phrygie, de la Cappadoce et du Pont exécutée en 1861 et publiée sous les auspices du ministère de l'Instruction publique, I-II, Paris.
- PEYSSONNEL 1765
Cl. Ch. Peyssonnel, Voyage à Magnesie, à Thyatire, à Sardes, & c., Paris.
- PM
E. Pfuhl – H. Möbius, Die ostgriechischen Grabreliefs, I-II, Mayence 1977-1979.
- POLASCHEK 1938
E. Polaschek, Peuce (1-3), RE, XIX.2, 1382-1390.
- RUSSELL 2011
D. Russell, The Roman Sarcophagus "Industry": A Reconsideration, eds.: J. Elsner – J. Huskinson, Life, Death and Representation: Some New Work on Roman Sarcophagi, Berlin-New York (Millennium-Studien zu Kultur und Geschichte des ersten Jahrtausends n. Chr. 29), 119-147.
- SALOMIES 2018
O. Salomies, A Fourth-Century Inscription from Abritus in Moesia Secunda, Tyche 52, 157-165.
- SCHULTHESS 1924
O. Schultheß, Καβαλλάριος, RESuppl. IV, 801.
- SGSLIB
V. Beševliev, Spätgriechische und spätlateinische Inschriften aus Bulgarien, Berlin 1964 (Berliner Byzantinistische Arbeiten 30).
- SELVI et alii 2019.
H. Selvi – İ. Şirin – B. Çelik– A. Yeşildal – R. Narin (Eds.), Uluslararası Orhan Gazi ve Kocaeli Tarihi Sempozyumu-V, Cilt I-II, Kocaeli.
- SESTON 1946
W. Seston, Dioclétien et la Tétrarchie: I. Guerres et réformes (284-300), Paris (BÉFAR 170).
- SHAW 1984
B. D. Shaw, Latin Funerary Epigraphy and Family Life in the Later Roman Empire, Historia 33, 457-497.
- SOLIN 2003
H. Solin, Analecta epigraphica, Arctos 37, 173-205.
- SPEIDEL 1984
M. P. Speidel, Catafractarii clibanarii and the Rise of the Later Roman Mailed Cavalry: A Gravestone from Claudiopolis in Bithynia, EA 4, 151-156 (= SPEIDEL 1992, 406-413).

- 1985
M. P. Speidel, The Master of the Dragon Standards and the Golden Torc: An Inscription from Prusias and Prudentius' Peristephanon, TAPhA 115, 283-287 (= SPEIDEL 1992, 390-395).
- 1986
M. P. Speidel, The Early Protectores and Their Beneficiarius Lance, AKB 16, 451-454.
- 1990
M. P. Speidel, The Army at Aquileia, the Moesiaci Legion and the Shield Emblems in the Notitia Dignitatum, SJ 45, 68-72 (= SPEIDEL 1992, 414-418).
- 1992
M. P. Speidel, Roman Army Studies, II, Stuttgart (Mavors 8).
- 1995
M. P. Speidel, A Horse Guardsman in the War between Licinius and Constantinus, Chiron 25, 83-87.
- 1997
M. P. Speidel, Late-Roman Military Decorations II: Gold-Embroidered Capes and Tunics, AntTard 5, 231-237.
- 2008
M. P. Speidel, Das Heer, ed.: K.-P. Johne, Die Zeit der Soldatenkaiser: Krise und Transformation des Römischen Reiches im 3. Jahrhundert n. Chr. (235-284), I, Berlin, 673-690.
- STAUNER 2020
K. Stauner, Der optio bandi tertii Armeniorum Theodotos aus Prusias ad Hypium, Philia 6, 180-193.
- STEIN 1933
E. Stein, Ordinarii et campidoctores, Byzantion 8, 379-387.
- ŞAHİN 1973
S. Şahin, Neufunde von antiken Inschriften in Nikomedia (Izmit) und ihrer Umgebung der Stadt, (Unpublished Diss. Münster).
- 1975
S. Şahin, Neue Inschriften von der bithynischen Halbinsel, ZPE 18, 27-48.
- 1985
S. Şahin, Katalog der bithynischen Inschriften im Museum von Istanbul. Teil I: Funde aus der bithynischen Halbinsel und aus der Gegend von İhsaniye, EA 5, 97-125.
- ŞARE-AĞTÜRK 2017
T. Şare-Ağtürk, İmparatorluk Başkenti Nicomedia'nın Renkli İhtişamı: Çukurbağ Kurtarma Kazılarında Ortaya Çıkarılan Görkemli Roma Anıtı, eds.: H. Selvi – B. Çelik – İ. Şirin – A. Yeşildal, Uluslararası Gazi Süleyman Paşa ve Kocaeli Tarihi Sempozyumu - III/International Symposium on Gazi Süleyman Paşa & History of Kocaeli III, Kocaeli, 343-358.
- 2018
T. Şare-Ağtürk, A New Tetrarchic Relief from Nicomedia: Embracing Emperors, AJA 122, 411-426.

- 2020
T. Şare-Ağtürk, The Self-Image of a “New” Imperial Capital City on the Tetrarchic Reliefs of Nicomedia, Lichtenberger et alii, 107-116.
- UYKAL et alii 2019
Z. Uykak – K. Çibuk – Ö. Titiz – R. Sayim, Nicomedia Batı Nekropolü Küçük Buluntuları, Selvi et alii 2019, 139-156.
- UZUNOĞLU 2013
H. Uzunoğlu, Anadolu’dan Epigramlar: 2. Latince Epigramlar, eds.: N. E. Akyürek-Şahin – B. Takmer – F. Onur, Eskiçağ Yazıları 4, İstanbul, 207-241.
- VELKOV 1998
V. Velkov, Aurélien et sa politique en Mésie et en Thrace, eds.: E. Frézouls – H. Jouffroy, Les empereurs illyriens. Actes du colloque de Strasbourg (11-13 octobre 1990), Strasbourg, 155-169.
- VULPE 1979
R. Vulpe, Inscription de Nicomédie concernant deux protectores de Dacie, ed.: D. M. Pippidi (Ed.), Actes du VII^e Congrès International d’épigraphie grecque et latine: Constantza, 9-15 septembre 1977, Bucharest-Paris, 486.
- WASSINK 1991
A. Wassink, Inflation and Financial Policy under the Roman Empire to the Price Edict of 301 A.D., Historia 40, 465-493.
- YOUINOU 2011
F. Youinou, La vie, la mort et l’au-delà dans les épitaphes de la garde rapprochée de l’empereur romain (prétoriens, protectores, domestici et scholes palatines), ed.: C. Deroux (Ed.), Corolla Epigraphica: hommages au professeur Yves Burnand, II, Bruxelles (Latomus 331), 719-734.
- ZAHARIADE – PHELPS 2002
M. Zahariade – M. K. Phelps, Milites Dacisciani qui iam saeviunt (HA, v.Gall. 12.3.4), Thraco-Dacica 22, 178-201.
- ZERVAN 2019
V. Zervan, Die Lehnwörter im Wortschatz der spätbyzantinischen historiographischen Literatur, Berlin-Boston (Byzantinisches Archiv 34).